

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

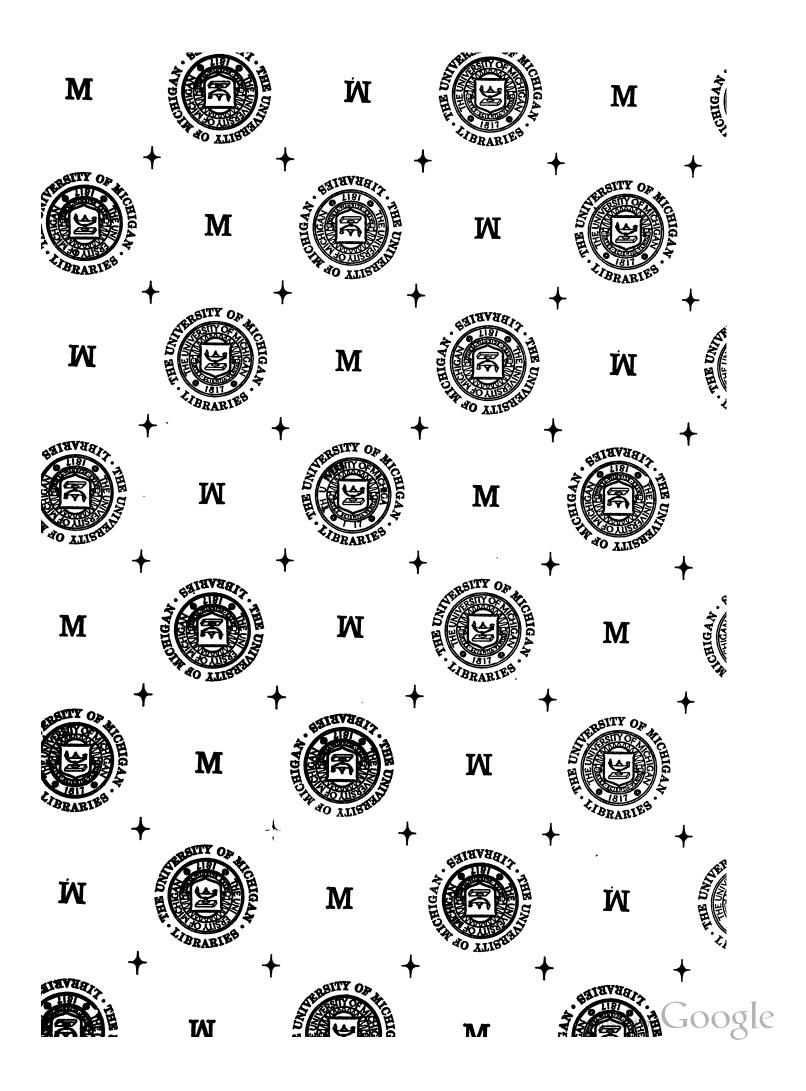

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

In College Days

(The Friar's Song) Harold M. Bowman, '00.

Where no one asks the "who" or "why";
Where no one doth the sinner ply
With his embarrassments of guile;
Where's ne'er a frown but brings a smile,
And cares are crimes,—'tis sin to sigh,
'Tis wrong to let a jest go by,
And hope is truth, and life is nigh,
The bourns of the Enchanted Isle
In College Days.

Then raise the rosy goblet high,— The singer's chalice,—and belie The tongues that trouble and defile; For we have yet a little while To linger,—You and Youth and I, In Michigan.

James Burrill Angell ((1829-1916)

Although the sad event had been anticipated, the bare announcement of President Angell's death must prove of peculiar significance to every educated American, poignantly significant to Michigan alumni the world over. A chasm yawns between the present and the past of our education and of our University; an entire order of associations departs. The commanding figure of President Eliot is still spared to us, indeed. But, even so, the children of all American state universities will feel that they have lost their most venerable and venerated leader. It is the end of a complete life, rarely ordered, dignified yet touched with the veritable savor of democracy, simple albeit stately—an embodiment of the sterling qualities native to old New England. And, for the thousands who owe allegiance to the great institution at Ann Arbor —Dr. Angell's monument—something has gone from the order of the universe, never to be replaced. With them the first of April, 1916, will always remain a day of sorrowful but elevating memories. * *

What was his secret? Not intellectual adroitness, with its restless experimenting; not "energy", with its bane of "new" departures; emphatically not ambition, with its itch for "results" and conspicuousness. Rather it reposed in a character that served as a sounding board for moral acoustics; an ability, that is, to let the right men alone, never harrying them in their work; an ability, moreover, to set the insignificant in its place, and to let it take its own meaningless course. Dr. Angell knew that the human mind can face actual issues, even if they be hostile; but he also knew that, to provoke this courage, the issue must be real and definite; and he permitted it to shape itself ere he met it. He could use prompt decision when necessary; but he had learned, what so few ever learn, that quick decisions are proper in exceptional cases only; while for the rest, even blunderers may be counted on to correct themselves under kindly persuasion. The charm of his public speech was an index of the man here. It bespoke his temperament. His tranquil unaltered humanity was the clue to much that others did not understand, or even misinterpreted. For his ripe wisdom lent him insight to see that great results come very gradually, and thanks only to the co-operation of many whose gifts, as is inevitable, are most various. He could abide the defects of qualities. His charm of address was indicative of that rarest of all faculties in an executive, the power to wait on "glances that stand agreed". By this principally he won to his unique place. Now that he is gone, many of us must think of him as of one who sowed the harvest we shall reap-and was content to have sown.

Keenly as we must feel the absence of his accustomed gracious presence, we cannot grieve as for a career cut short in its prime, with promise half fulfilled. Nay, remembering his mature performance, which so evades our feeble words, we would rather say, with Madame de Stael, "When a noble life has prepared old age, it is not the decline that it reveals, but the first days of immortality".

The University of Michigan

HE University of Michigan was organized under an act of the Legislature in 1837 as an integral part of the educational system of the State. At that time there were no state institutions of learning that were worthy of the name of University. Higher education was confined to private corporations, wholly independent of state control. Between these institutions and the few scattered common schools there were practically no public high schools to be found in a large majority of states as late as 1831. The educational revival of the early decades of the nineteenth century expressed an insistent demand that the government should assume the responsibility for the instruction of its citizens. In response to this public demand for better educational facilities the State of Michigan adopted the "Prussian idea", a system of public instruction embracing the three divisions of schools-primary schools, secondary schools, and university. "Branch" schools, numbering five the first year, were immediately established for the purpose of preparing students for the University, which opened its doors in September, 1841, with a faculty of two professors and a student body numbering six freshmen. The branch schools were soon absorbed by the public high schools, thus relieving the University of their support and affording opportunity for further development. The first equipment of the University of Michigan consisted of six buildings: two dormitories, which included class rooms, and four houses for professors. Subsequently the dormitories became the wings of the present University Hall. The president's house, extensively altered, still occupies its original site on the campus. Such was the modest beginning of the great institution of learning which is now widely recognized as a national university of first rank.

PHYSICAL EQUIPMENT

The campus proper of the University of Michigan comprises forty acres of land and twenty buildings. Thirty-three other buildings occupy sites adjacent to the campus. Among the other properties of the University are the following: Ferry Field, the men's athletic grounds; Palmer Field, the women's athletic grounds; a ninety-acre arboretum and garden along the Huron river; the Saginaw Forestry Farm, eighty acres of land one mile west of Ann Arbor; and the Bogardus Engineering Camp and Biological Station, a tract of land including 2,200 acres, in Cheboygan County, seventeen miles south of the Straits of Mackinac.

Ferry Field is one of the best equipped athletic grounds in the country. It contains forty acres of land and is surrounded by a high brick wall, with an ornamental gate at the northeast corner. Besides numerous football and baseball fields for varsity and class teams, it includes 32 tennis courts, a running track, with a 220-yard "straight-away", a stadium, and stands. The football stands seat 22,656 persons, while the baseball stand seats 1,632. One section of the football stadium was built two years ago, with a seating capacity of 13,200. When completed the stadium will accommodate 52,000 spectators. A commodious club house, containing lockers, baths and rubbing and lodging rooms, is situated near the entrance to the field. An annual "blanket" tax of five dollars admits the student to all athletic events and affords him the privilege of using the facilities of the field for recreation purposes.

Palmer Field, the women's athletic grounds, contains tennis courts, hockey and baseball fields, a basketball court, a club house, and an expansive green for physical recreation. This field, encircled by hills, furnishes an amphitheater for open-air celebrations. It is here that the annual cap-night celebration is held. May-day and other pageants presented by the women are also given in this picturesque theater.

Among the noteworthy buildings recently erected on the University of Michigan campus are Hill Auditorium, the Natural Science Building, the Chemistry and Pharmacy Building, and the two dormitories for women.

Hill Auditorium, one of the finest music halls in the world, was erected at a cost of $300,000, the major portion of which was bequeathed by the late Hon. Arthur Hill, of Saginaw, an alumnus of the University and for many years a member of the Board of Regents. It has a seating capacity of 5,000 and is used for all the occasions which assemble the university public, such as the Choral Union and May Festival concerts, convocation, lectures, pageants, mass meetings, and the like. This building contains the famous Frieze Memorial organ, originally constructed for the Columbian Exposition in 1893, and for many years located in University Hall. The large exhibition room on the second floor is devoted to the Stearns collection of musical instruments, presented to the University several years ago by the late Frederick Stearns, of Detroit.

The Natural Science Building was completed last fall at the beginning of the academic year. This splendid structure contains over 270 rooms and cost $450,000. It includes the departments of Botany, Forestry, Geology, Mineralogy, Zoology, and Psychology. Though constructed primarily to serve utilitarian purposes, the building conforms in architectural design to Hill Auditorium, which faces it directly across North University Avenue.

The Chemistry Building, a four-story structure, rectangular in shape, includes 125 rooms and 104,500 square feet of floor space. All the chemistry of the various departments of the University, except the technical chemistry of the College of Medicine and Surgery, is taught in this building.

From an architectural point of view the most interesting building in the University group is the Martha Cook dormitory for women. It is the gift of the Cook family of Hillsdale and New York. Its estimated value is approximately half a million dollars. It is Tudor-Gothic in design, and quite generally conceded to be one of the most artistic structures of its kind in the country. It contains all the modern conveniences to be found in club homes and accommodations for 125 women. The other dormitory, Newberry Residence Hall, while less pretentious in architectural appointments than the Martha Cook building, is a strictly modern building, pleasing to the sight and comfortably and artistically furnished. It affords living quarters for sixty women. It is the gift of the Newberry family, of Detroit.

LIVING CONDITIONS

Students at the University of Michigan live in the private homes of the city or in fraternity and club houses, of which latter there are over sixty in number. The wide choice afforded the student in the selection of his rooming house enables him to adjust his living expenses to his allowance. The women who do not live in either of the two dormitories or in sorority houses are assigned by the dean of women to the various approved "League Houses", private homes conducted under the supervision of the Women's League, a student organization which exercises general supervision over the university activities of the women. By supervising the rooming houses that are open to women the League is able to standardize living conditions and at the same time give direction to the social life of the women. The same kind of supervision is being instituted for the rooming houses devoted to men. It is quite generally desired, however, that dormitories under the direction of the University shall be available to both men and women in the not too distant future.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

Not the least important part of a university student's training is acquired through his associations outside the class room. A great cosmopolitan student body, with opportunity for intimate social contact among its individual members, affords opportunities of inestimable value to the future citizen. To exchange opinions with men and women from foreign lands, as well as with those from the various states in the Union, to share their pleasures and responsibilities, to work with them in the laboratory, the library, or the class room, to compete with them for athletic or academic preferment—it is this experience alone which can crush out the narrow provincialism of the average student and make him tolerant and broad-minded. Contact with his fellows affords the only means whereby the vulgarian or the prig can be rendered good company for intelligent men and women. True culture, which evinces a preference for what is superior amid all the accidents of life, can be acquired in no other way.

THE MICHIGAN UNION

Foremost among the student organizations which foster this cosmopolitan spirit is the University of Michigan Union, whose membership embraces more than three thousand undergraduates and many thousand alumni. A million dollar campaign for funds with which to erect and maintain a new club house is nearing its completion. It is confidently expected that the last dollar will soon be subscribed, so that building operations may be started during commencement week of the present year. This campaign for a new Union home is the most ambitious project ever undertaken by the alumni of any university, and the success of the movement speaks well for the loyalty and enterprise of Michigan graduates and former students. When completed the new Union will serve as a common social center for students, faculty, and alumni of the University. It is a significant fact that the Union has been able, even with its present inadequate facilities, to give general direction to student activities. It produces the annual student opera, conducts student, class, and university affairs, and serves as the social center of university undergraduate life. It is obvious that an increase in the facilities of the Union will multiply its opportunities for serving the interests of the student body.

Besides the Union, whose activities cover every day of the academic year, there are a great variety of organizations devoted to special social and academic interests. Honor and departmental societies, literary and foreign language associations, dramatic, musical, debating, and social clubs, and the like, present ample opportunity for the development of the student's aptitudes. Nor are the women of the University less active than the men in fostering the interests of their group life. And permeating all these activities is a wholesome spirit of democracy, which means open opportunity for all and special privilege for none.

LIVING EXPENSES

Michigan has long been known as the "poor man's college". It is estimated that forty percent of the student body is at least partially self-supporting. Student employment bureaus, conducted by the University Y. M. C. A. and the Michigan Union, afford help to needy students throughout the year. More than 4,000 "jobs" are opened to students annually through the activity of these employment agencies. There are also available to deserving students more than seventy-five scholarships, loan funds, and prizes. These funds have been provided by the Board of Regents, graduating classes, alumni associations, and individuals.

The annual expenses of students, including clothing and incidentals, are, on an average, about four or five hundred dollars. Actual living expenses will average less than $300 a year, while incidental items, such as clothing and railroad fare, will fall below $150 a year. The annual fee, which is less for residents of the state than for outsiders, is distributed among the various schools and colleges of the University as follows:

Science and the Arts-$42; Engineering-$57; Medical (including laboratory fees)-$100; Law -$67; Pharmacy-$57; Homeopathic-$100; Dental Surgery-$107; Graduate School-$42.

STUDENT ENROLLMENT

The total number of students enrolled in the University of Michigan during the past year, inclusive of the summer session, is 7,214. This enrollment is distributed among the several schools and colleges as follows: Literature, Science, and the Arts—3,225; Engineering and Architecture—1,571; Medical—323; Law—452; Pharmacy—126; Homeopathic—54; Dental Surgery—353; Graduate—357;—Summer Session—1,678. The net total eliminates all double registrations.

WHAT THE UNIVERSITY STANDS FOR

The ideal of the University of Michigan is enlightened citizenship. To this end it fosters all those educational interests and influences which are effectual in producing the cultivated man and women.

Joogle

Hosted by

Its relation to the nation is that of a trustee who has assumed a sacred obligation. It recognizes the fact that the professional man or woman must always be something more than a technically trained individual. He or she must also be equipped to meet the responsibilities of citizenship. The university, therefore, besides preparing men and women for their life work, also seeks to broaden their sympathies, strengthen their loyalties, enrich their sense of what is superior, so that their personalities may contribute to life a benefit which does not often find a place in bookkeeping accounts, but which nevertheless possesses an inestimable value to society in general. The public support of a state university is justified by the good it confers upon those who enjoy its privileges and by the influence it exerts, through its graduates and as an intellectual center, upon the commonwealth. This purpose is being achieved by the University of Michigan through the thirty-five thousand graduates and former students whom it has trained for citizenship. But the University of Michigan is reaching the people of the state even more directly by placing within their reach the resources of a great educational institution. Besides the services rendered by the hospitals and laboratories, by the libraries and reference bureaus, more than three hundred and fifty free lectures are presented annually throughout the state. Through this direct service over one hundred thousand people of the commonwealth are reached annually, without extra expense to the taxpayers.

It may truly be said that the splendid ideal of President Henry P. Tappan, who more than any other man was the founder of the University of Michigan, has been fully realized—"A University worthy of the name; with a capacity adequate to our wants, receiving a development commensurate with the growth of all things around us, doing a work which shall be heartily acknowledged by the present generation, and reaching with increasing power through the generations to come... A great work, it will require great means; but when once accomplished, it will constitute the glory of our state and give us an indisputable pre-eminence."

NEWBERRY RESIDENCE HALL

The New Dormitories

THE opening last fall of the two residence halls for women inaugurates a new epoch in housing conditions for students in the University. They mark the way for a return to the earlier days of the University, when all the students were housed in dormitories. The present system of allowing students to find accommodations for themselves in the homes of the citizens of Ann Arbor was instituted as far back as the time when President Tappan saw no way of increasing the facilities of the University except by utilizing the rooms in what are now the two wings of University Hall which, before his time had been used as dormitories. His marked sympathy with German educational methods also predisposed him to follow this practice, which was customary in Germany.

Since those days, however, conditions have changed and for any one who has made a study of student life the need of better housing conditions is apparent. The obvious solution of the problem is the erection of residence halls, or dormitories, particularly for those people who are not accommodated in fraternities or clubhouses. For the men, the Michigan Union Clubhouse will have a marked effect. For the women, the erection of the Helen Handy Newberry Hall and Martha Cook Building has probably been the greatest step towards ameliorating conditions. As is evidenced by their names, each of these Halls is a memorial to a mother on the part of her children. The Martha Cook Building was erected by the Cook family of Hillsdale, while Newberry Hall was erected by the children of Mrs. John S. Newberry, whose husband was a graduate of the University in the class of 1847.

Few college buildings, to say nothing of dormitories or halls of residence, surpass the new Martha Cook Building in architectural beauty or in perfection of furnishings and decorations. Every detail bears the evidence of careful thought for the comfort of its occupants on the part of the designers and donors. In general it is an exceptionally fine adaptation of the Tudor-Gothic, always a favorite style for college architecture, though this is the first example of this type at the University of Michigan. While in its main lines it is simple it shows an unusual perfection in detail which makes it unquestionably the finest building in Ann Arbor. Few buildings in the country can be found so perfect in their architecture and appointments.

The main entrance is upon South University. The building in general is Tapestry brick, relieved by a simple pattern in darker brick. All the trimmings are of cut stone in which the Gothic details are accentuated even to rows of Gargoyles in the stone cornice near the top of the building. The entrance has become an emblem of the building and is reproduced in numerous details throughout, upon several of the mantels, upon the china service designed for the building and even in the linen.

Upon entering one stands at the end of a long cloistered hall with flag paving and a groined ceiling of white stone upon the blue of the vault. This hallway is flanked by a long series of tall windows which take up the whole side of the passage way and open upon a terrace overlooking the lawn. At either side of the main entrance are short hallways, the one on the right leading to the reception room furnished in crimson and gold. One of the features of the room is an open fireplace of Botticino marble. At the left of the main entrance another passageway leads to the apartments of the social director and the guest room.

Immediately beyond the reception hall and connected with it by a paneled anteroom is the second and larger of the two parlors, which serves as a living and music room. This room is elaborately paneled in teak wood from the Philippines. The plaster ceiling is a replica of one in the South Kensington Museum in London. Several doors at the side open into the long Gothic corridors at the left. In the blue room is the fire-place dedicated by the late President Angell.

Beyond the living room is the dining room, in its turn opening on to the corridor, with seats for one hundred and sixteen girls in groups around small round tables. The room is paneled in rich brown oak to which the furniture of the room corresponds. Beyond on the first floor are the serving rooms and quarters for the servants.

These central rooms occupy the equivalent of two full stories with a mezzanine floor at either end, each of which furnish a space for a group of seven or eight rooms. Most of the rooms are on the second and third floors, each of which has accommodations for approximately forty girls. There are also about fifteen rooms on the fourth floor in addition to three reserved as rest rooms to be used by any of those in the building who feel it desirable to have absolute quiet. All but a few of the rooms are single, in accordance with the desire expressed by a ballot of University women, though there are a few double rooms. The furnishings of the rooms are simple but of the very best quality.

In the basement are the kitchen and kitchen equipment and the laundry as well as the coat room for men who may possibly be guests of the girls in the building. The building is equipped with an elevator.

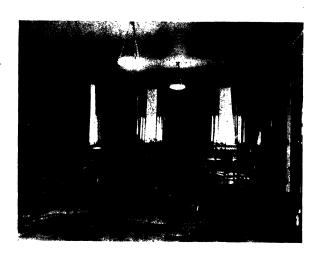

Equally attractive though less elaborate in details is the Newberry Hall on State Street. Quite unlike the Martha Cook building in its general appearance it furnishes the same character of accommodations for its residents. It is more simple in architectural design and smaller, but it embodies every essential found in the larger building. It is of hollow tile construction with a stucco exterior, relieved by white trimmings and green shutters. There are four floors and a basement.

On entering one finds a reception room on either side, that on the right opening through wide doors into a second room which can, if necessary, be made part of the main room, so that the two can be used for receptions and dances. The color scheme of these reception rooms is in general deep ivory and old blue with paneled walls in ivory and brown. Various articles of old furniture, davenports and a carved chest, the gift of the Newberry family, find places in these rooms.

At the left behind the reception room is the main stairway. Beyond are several single rooms, including the apartments of the social director, on either side of the hallway leading into the dining room, which is exceedingly simple, but particularly attractive because of its terraces on each side which may be made a part of the room in favorable weather. There are nine tables with a capacity of ninety places in all. Behind the dining room are the serving room and the offices of the director of the building.

THE DINING HALL-Martha Cook Dormitory

DRAWING ROOM-Newberry

In the basement are the kitchen, laundry, storage, a baking room and other portions of the kitchen equipment as well as a completely arranged sewing room for the girls.

Affairs in the dormitory are handled by the girls themselves. Rules are made by a body of representatives elected in class meetings. The officers are elected by the house at large. Faculty dinners are given one Sunday in each month.

Both the buildings are under the direction of Governing Boards. Mrs. Chauncey F. Cook, of Hillsdale, Miss Grace G. Millard, '97, of Detroit, and Mrs. Frederic B. Stevens, of Detroit, are in charge of the Martha Cook Building of which Miss Frances C. Mack, formerly of Ferry Hall, Chicago, is business manager, while Miss Gertrude H. Biggs, who comes from a school in Chicago, is the social director.

The Board of Governors of the Newberry Hall of Residence consists of Mrs. Myra B. Jordan, Dean of Women, Mrs. Henry B. Joy, of Detroit, Mrs. A. C. Angell, of Detroit, Miss Claire M. Sanders, '04, of Detroit, and Mrs. Henry W. Douglas, '97-'01, of Ann Arbor. Miss Clara Hunt, who comes from the Michigan Agricultural College, is the business manager, while Mrs. Erie Layton Gates, '98, is the social director. J. A. H.

THE MICHIGAN UNION BUILDING COMMITTEE November 20, 1915

The Michigan Union Campaign

HE University of Michigan has never been advertised so much as it was during the summer of nineteen hundred and fifteen, at which time was taking place the organizing of Michigan alumni for the purpose of raising funds with which to build a new clubhouse at Ann Arbor. The story of that publicity is best made known by telling the plans for organization and the means by which they were carried out.

It is not untruthful to state that the campaign which is just coming to a successful close dates back to nineteen hundred and nine. At that time the first active work was begun among the alumni. However, that served only as a preliminary step,—it resulted in the collection of many bits of information needed and used by those who had the task of actually organizing the older classes.

We generally think of the three months of July, August and September, nineteen hundred and fifteen, as the time when the most important work was done. The whole campaign has centered around one idea, "Let the alumni themselves raise the money by personal solicitation among their fellow classmates." All of which meant that some two hundred committees had to be chosen in three months, and during the time allotted these working bodies were chosen.

The first step was to divide the whole United States into ten sections, each one having as its center a city containing a very large number of graduates and former students of the University. For example, Chicago was chosen the center of a district composed of Wisconsin, northern Illinois and northern Indiana. Cleveland was the center of the district composed of Ohio and other surrounding territory. Ten men were chosen to select committees in the ten districts above mentioned, each man having charge of one district and each district having alumni which would need about twenty committees to properly solicit them. Then came the task of getting the men who would do the actual work of raising money.

THE NEW UNION BUILDING: THE PLUNGE

The organizer when he went into a town, had certain information concerning the men he was to visit perhaps he knew beforehand just what person was best suited to lead in that particular locality—and again, the information might consist only of the names of the alumni living there. Wherever an alumni association was found in a fairly live condition, it was used as the means of getting to the individual. But as they were not very numerous, other means were resorted to. Alumni meetings were arranged for where possible and at these a chairman was selected. Then with his help, a local committee of solicitors was picked out. In many places it was impossible to arrange meetings and the organization was perfected only after several visits to the most active Michigan men.

At the end of three months two hundred committees with a total of over three thousand men had signified their intentions of raising one million dollars during the month of October. On the second day of October, nineteen hundred and fifteen, alumni dinners were held in all places where numbers were large enough to warrant them. They can be appreciated only by being present. One can hardly imagine old men who finished college thirty years ago waving their hands and yelling when there is flashed on the "movie" screen a picture of Bill Day leading a Michigan yell. The alumni have not lost their voices. And their conversational qualities are just as effective. No salesman ever took a greater interest in his line of goods than some of the old boys when they were "hitting" a man for a thousand dollars or more. All through October the men were working among those of their classmates assigned to them. In many places celebrations were held on the last day of October, and because the whole amount was not subscribed by that time, new ideas as to the proper way of getting the balance were than advanced.

Since that time the campaign has been gradually nearing its close and there is no doubt that the whole million dollars will be ultimately subscribed. Since the first active work began there has been no small amount of publicity given to the project. The daily newspapers in the larger cities, the Outlook, Leslie's Weekly, the Metropolitan and the Saturday Evening Post, all have carried articles on different phases of the Union and its activities. It is quite safe to say that no college or University has ever received such fair treatment at the hands of the American Press. This is true in spite of the fact that one newspaper requested payment for so much advertising space.

Sector Sec.

Several incidents of the past summer might give one an idea of some of the situations really met by those who did the actual organizing. It takes the exception to prove the rule so far as Michigan spirit is concerned. One alumnus, holding an important position on the Faculty of a well known university, characterized the whole campaign as a farce, at the same time stating that he would rather give his spare money to the nations engaged in the present war. However, no one was able to find out that he had given anything even to that cause. Another "grad" was troubled so much by the literature sent him that he threatened to get an injunction restraining the chairman of his locality from sending him more of its kind. Happenings like the above served to make the great majority work all the more earnestly. When the editor of a small town newspaper asked for a list of all of the alumni in that locality so that he could print their names in the next issue, the unpleasantness of some of the happenings faded away. One of the most encouraging sights was that of watching a prominent alumnus gather his classmates around his table and raise two or three thousand dollars in the course of a few minutes. In midwinter the San Francisco and New York alumni held banquets on the same night and by means of a trans-continental telephone system, held a mutual one-hour program. At that time the New York Chairman informed an Ann Arbor listener that he had already raised fourteen hundred dollars that evening.

The campaign now being brought to a close has served more than one useful purpose. The million dollars subscribed may be deemed only a small part of the beneficial results. Michigan's alumni body has been organized into a great and useful association of associations; and thereby, our alumni have been brought into closer relationship with the University. Our Alma Mater has been placed before the whole United States in a way hard to be appreciated and only the future can tell the good to be derived from such wholesome publicity. Michigan men have been taught to give money and it is to be sincerely hoped that they will not shut down on their generosity after having made such an enterprising beginning in providing for needed University buildings. #### Graduate School

Alfred H. Lloyd, Ph.D., Dean

THE first graduate student at the University is recorded in the catalogue of 1856. The degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science were earliest conferred, the degree of Doctor of Philosophy being offered for the first time in 1876. Changes made in studies in 1877-78 had an important bearing on graduate work at the University. This was due to the multiplication of electives and the introduction of the credit system. The seminary method of instruction began then to assume considerable proportions, and the movement was strengthened by a growing demand for better trained teachers.

In the spring of 1892 the Graduate School was organized, but for many years it was little more than a bureau within the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. Provision was thus made, however, for a more systematic and efficient administration of higher work, and, so far as possible, for the separate instruction of graduate students. Twenty years later in the fall of 1912 the School was reorganized, becoming a separate department, related on terms of equality to all the Colleges and Schools of the University. The management of the School is now vested in an Executive Board of nine, including the President of the University and the Dean of the School.

College of Literature, Science and Arts

JOHN ROBERT EFFINGER, Ph.D., Dean

THE College has its origin in the original act passed by the Legislature which created the University, commonly known as the "Organic Act," passed in 1837. Owing to many complications the University was not opened until September, 1841, with two professors, a librarian and six students. The College was conducted along the conventional and traditional lines until 1852, which date marks the advent of Dr. Tappan and the passing of a new act by the Legislature granting the University much greater power. Until the year 1855-56, no electives were allowed and the degree given was A.B., but with the beginning of this year the seniors were allowed to elect one-third of their work. At this time the College gave three courses, Classical, Scientific and Latin-Scientific, which led to the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. In 1877 the College was entirely revised, and an English course was added, giving the degree of Bachelor of Letters. The elective system had progressed so far by this time that fully one-half of the studies required for the bachelor's degree were elective. In 1901 it was decided to give a single degree, that of Bachelor of Arts, and later this was modified so that students who had done a majority of their work in the sciences might receive the degree of Bachelor of Sciences if they so desired. In 1895 the technical work in engineering, which had hitherto been done in this College, was separated and the College of Engineering was created. In 1912 the work of the Graduate School which had been organized in 1892, was separated from this College, and the Regents created an independent Graduate School. In spite of these changes, the College of Literature, Science and the Arts has grown very rapidly and for the year 1915-1916 has an enrollment of more than 3,050 students.

David Friday

W E have chosen to address this last expressive effort of the Literary class of 1916 to a man who is beloved by that class.

We should confess failure did we not honor these pages with the name of one who is recognized, not only by us as an excellent teacher but by the judicious elsewhere as an authority in his field; he commands the tribute of our minds.

But that he is popular and respected is not sufficient. It is with appreciation of his admirable qualities as a man, and with gratitude that he has so borne witness to the truth and nobility which reside with him, that we respectfully dedicate this, the senior Literary section, to Professor David Friday.

Senior Literary History

AY back in 1912 we opened our eyes on the University world, and proceeded to grow up in the peculiar way of our own which has marked us as Fortune's favorite and the chosen of the gods. "Sweet Sixteen" we were then, and during our four years we have not been embittered, but shall go forth with our gracious manner to make for ourselves in the world the same relative mark which we have established here. Our aim is not a low one, nor shall we, if supported by the same spirit which has been ours through our college days, fail in its achievement.

May we characterize our work as administrative and executive, and may we be permitted the privilege of selecting examples to illustrate our claim from almost every activity in which a class in the University of Michigan finds itself. If, in some line of work we have failed to make a worthy contribution to progress, we shall readily admit our failure; but let us extenuate it by the old economic argument which we have all heard from Prof. Taylor, "If United States capital is more efficient economically while invested in manufacture, why should it be diverted into promoting the shipping industry".

No member of our class has settled the question as to which, the Augustan or the Ciceronean age, excelled in its literary activity; nor has anyone of us enlightened the world in regard to the fourth dimension. We may have produced no famous scholastic lights, but that we are a steady, level-headed, serious, constructive set of students is attested by the fact that after several years of literary poverty, the University is to be enriched by the re-establishment of the Inlander. It is one of the proud achievements of the class that it has been responsible for the fact that the University is again to have a literary magazine.

Nor is it in the line of literary periodicals that the class has confined its efforts along constructive work in the publications' field. From a circulation of about 1,000, The Gargoyle, edited by W. A. P. John, and "business managed" by Edward Maguire, has doubled its circulation. The team-work of these men has raised the book into the front rank of college comics, and the class of 1916 claims the credit for furnishing the men who did the constructive work.

Passing from the publications' work into another field, the class of Sixteen is not without significant athletic figures. When the present senior lits leave college the track team will lose one of the best captains it has ever had, and the only man who has twice captained it. For two years "Hal" Smith has been leading the Michigan cinder men, and has been leading the cinder men of other colleges for that matter. George Murphy, Joe Ufer, and George Fox are members of the two-mile relay team which has set a new mark for Michigan's runners, and which has equalled the world's indoor mark. "Stubby" Walters on the track and cross country teams has been a man to be figured with at all times.

In football the class has cut a significant figure with Roehm as the brains of Yost's 1916 machine. At quarter "Rummy" played throughout the year, and in previous years he had been with the squad. Lewis Reimann made one of Michigan's best players in the Harvard game in 1915, and it was only the hard knocks received in that year that prevented him from appearing in his senior year. Clyde Bastian has played in the backfield of three Yost elevens, and is the third contribution of the class to Michigan's football teams.

In baseball the class has two claims to fame. Its first, Captain George Labadie, who has played three years in the outfield and is leading the Wolverines this year, the class must share, but full claim is laid upon Elmer Brandell, who is one of the most valuable men that Coach Lundgren has ever had, playing with ability in almost any position on the nine.

Tennis for the past two years has been almost exclusively supported by the Sixteen Lits, who have had three of the four men on the team. Mack has for two years played on the team, and has once won the All-Comers tennis title. Crawford, captain of the team this year, is playing his second season, as well as Switzer, who was on the team in 1915.

In the executive, no less than in the athletic and literary and scholastic lines of work, has the class distinguished itself. "Jack" Finkenstaedt saw the error of his ways, and turned to the literary department in time to bring credit to it as manager of the track team. Boyd Compton served the football team in the same capacity, and if the list of managers is to be continued we may mention "Toots" Shafer, Ray Ballentine and "Jimmie" Thomas, who have at one time or another managed the musical clubs and interclass athletics.

the second se

Once in a while the class has turned frivolous and has managed to hold a party. Its greatest achievement in this line was aiding in the reinstitution of the Junior Hop, which was again established as a result of the activities of the classes of 1916. The good behavior enforced at this party so charmed that faculty that it has been allowed to remain. The Soph Prom, which was managed by W. A. P. John in a most able way, was one of the most successful parties ever held by the sophomores, and the usual good time was enjoyed by all.

We haven't mentioned our women yet. It's not because we are ashamed of them. Indeed not! It is because they deserve a separate section all to themselves, and they shall have it.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

So many of the women in the class of 1916 stand out as one looks back over the four years just passed that it is hard to select the few, room for whose mention is available. From knowing the others well, however, we fear no jealousy and may go bravely on.

Martha Gray, besides being one of our most proficient students, has had time to be women's editor of the Michigan Daily, and, among other things, to act as chairman of the Junior Girls' play committee, and to write the major portion of the lyrics for the production. Ellen Sargeant has also been a busy woman, having directed her energies along musical lines. She has acted as president of the Glee club, and has written musical scores for several productions, and helped with others, among them being the Junior Girls' play and the Shakespeare pageant.

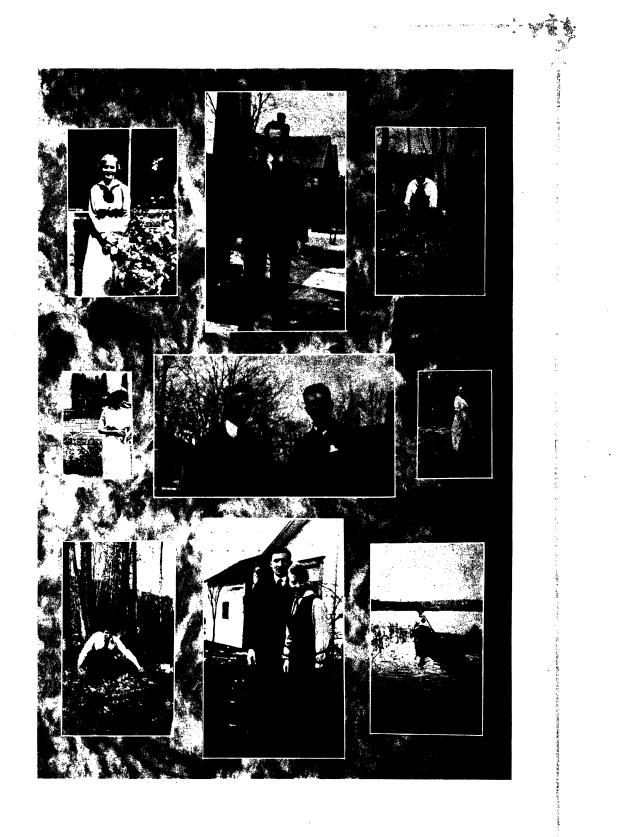

The Judiciary Council has been dignified by the presence on its roll of such names as: Grace Fletcher, Beatrice Lambrecht, who was also vice-president of the Women's League, and Helen Humphreys, who is president of the Women's League. Besides being the most beautiful girl in the class, Gertrude Roos has found time to serve as class secretary, turning over the honor to Miriam Hubbard, who is serving in that position in her senior year.

Louise Potter has diverted enough of her attention from being popular to being senior class vicepresident and to running high in the race for the best student job. Eleanor Stalker has written the Junior Girls' play, and Marion Stowe has served as president of the Y.W.C.A. Grace Thomasma has been engaged in a worthy effort in social work, and has done much in the organization of affairs in Martha Cook dormitory. Her cleverness has stood her in good stead in helping her meet and solve the problems which she has encountered there.

There are others who deserve bouquets, and to whom we'd like to hand them, but they are so many that we can't name them. This will do for a sample. Haven't they a right to a section of their own?

Our achievements, such as they are, and we like to flatter ourselves that they are extensive and beneficial, are not a mere flash in the pan. Our force is not a short, intense one. It is, we hope, a force which will strive for good and justice in the outside world, and if our conduct in the University be any criterion, we have just cause to hope that our end will be achieved.

Senior Literary Statistics

EFORE entering upon its annual farce, time-honored through its previous patronage by senior classes, the class of 1916 elected Professor David Friday the man above all others in the literary department to whom it wished its section of Michigan's year book dedicated.

Having disposed of its serious business the class went ahead in the annual revel, which in previous year has been a burlesque of its members. The staid seniors of the class of "Sweet Sixteen," looking upon this task as one to be well accomplished, and no less conscientiously done than any other it had attempted and completed, went ahead in spite of the travesty which had formerly been made of the institution, and cast an honest ballot on those men and women who were to be honored with the titles of "sportiest guy" and "prettiest girl."

No course seemed to have done the members of the class much good, and the ballot was a close one, Accounting leading with a margin of but one vote over Heredity in the contest for the most beneficial course. Maybe so many courses had proved of such great benefit that the members of the class had difficulty in determining what one should receive the credit. At any rate every course, from "Dr. May's gym" to Calculus, ran third, there being several more courses in the tie for that place than there are courses in the curriculum.

The next two problems were more easily solved by the voters. Creative Listening won the race for the biggest snap course in a walk-away, having a wide margin over its nearest rival, Mathematics 52. Fine Arts 1 easily took the palm in the ballot on the most enjoyable course, while Business Organization and Management ran second. Again there was a big scramble for third place, eighteen being in a dead lock for the position of third most popular course. Some candidate for P. B. K. even went so far as to affirm that he enjoyed "any philosophy course," and another man who loves hard work admitted to enjoying Corporations.

Having given the faculty all its ideas on the curriculum, the class proceeded to the election of its most popular member. Here was a clash of brains and brawn! Here was the last stand of the athlete against the administrator, and our class president won the race by a narrow margin over the quarterback of the football team. Close on the heels of this pair were George McMahon and W. A. P. John, and no other man in the class was popular with anybody. In spite of the close race run between the two high men it is gratifying to see that they were worthy of the number of votes they each received. "Jimmie" Angell and "Rummy" Roehm still speak when they meet on the street. All credit to them for concealing the hard feelings of jealousy which we know must be theirs.

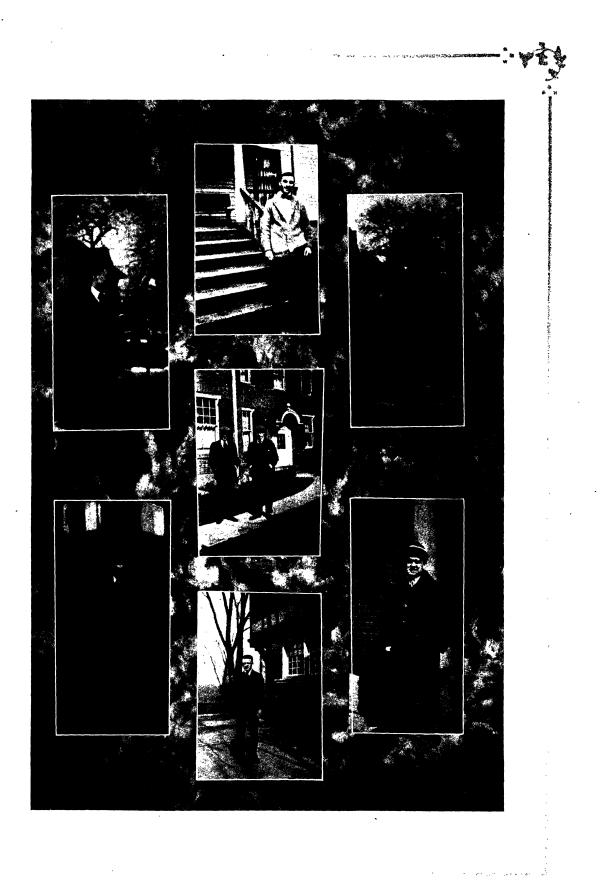

Our vice-president, aside from being the only woman to receive a vote for every position of honor open to women in the class, and a few designed for men, proved that she was worthy her title by being unanimously elected the most popular girl. Beggin' your pardon—unanimously except one, Dean Myra B. Jordan being the other girl in the race for this place.

There was a lot of hard feeling developed in the class in the lobbying for the next candidate, but after three recounts of the ballots Robert Curley Bob Turner was declared to be the handsomest man in the class. The ballot which won him the honor affirmed that he was the prettiest man, but Robert deserves all the credit for a well directed campaign just the same. W. A. P. John also received a vote, so did George McMahon and "Trig" Torrey.

Chase Ashbaugh, that Paderewski of the mandola and guitar, won the distinction of being the man who thought he was the handsomest devil amongst all the galaxy of handsome Satans in the class of Lit '16. Harry Kerr was close, and "Doug" Graham, who for eight semesters has so nobly represented the class on the Oratorical board, was also in the race. W. A. P. John received a vote, too.

The purely aesthetic next occupied the members of the class who were present at the memorable meeting when the ballot was taken, and Gertrude Roos was elected the prettiest girl. Phyllis Povah, Vice-Presidentess Potter, and Charlotte Sites also ran.

The brain which had defeated the brawn in the race for most popular man, suffered defeat at the hands of more brain in the race for best student, and "Bill" Pearl beat out "Jimmie" Angell for the job of best student. This was one of the places where the vice-president invaded territory traditionally reserved for men, nor was she alone on hostile ground. Martha Gray was there with her, even ahead of her. A fellow by the name of W. A. P. John received a ballot for the position.

Ray Gleichauf and Douglas Graham ran a dead heat in the finals in the biggest grind race, with Roehm, Gans and Duffield taking what dishonor there was left. John R. Brokenshire was looked upon as a dark horse, but he failed to place in the money.

By far the most prominent man in the competition for all of the positions was Mr. John. He alone had the distinction of being the only man to receive a vote for every office, honor, and disgrace which it was in the power of the class to confer by ballot. To him alone goes the credit for holding two positions of trust at the hands of his class-mates, who in one and the same day elected that gentleman to the office of most successful bluffer and shrewdest politician.

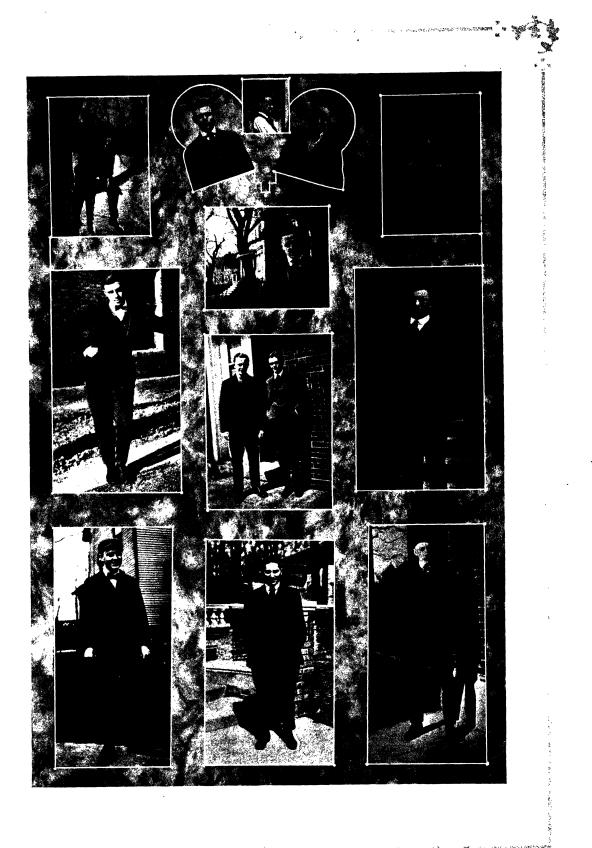

Nobody except Sarah Stanley, Ruth Kreger and Ethylen Bolen argued with Honor Gaines for the title of jolliest girl, but even the good work of these young women in the jollying line went for naught before the ability which the latter seemed to possess, and the first three named had to be content with a tie for second place, and the distinction of being jollier than most of the class's women. The jolliest is Honor Gaines.

"Pete" Surgenor just missed out on being the sportiest guy in the class, but he contented himself with the laurels of the biggest fusser and let Harry Kerr and Stan Robinson share the distinction of being that type of gentleman in the class of 1916 which most resembles the sportiest guy conceivable. The gentlemen appreciated the honor and let "Cap" Murphy and "Doug" Graham come in for a little of the credit. "Joe" Gans won the honor of being the man who thought he was the sportiest guy. Nobody disputed his title.

Declare the banns and strike up Mr. Mendelssohn's tune! "Cab" Bentley and Helen Paterson each won first place in their own class for the first person to get married. It is prophetic!

How did you fare? The author, although he was overlooked in the ballot, feels sure that he will receive sufficient attention after the results of the elections meet the public eye. "The pity of it!'

MORTIMER ELWYN COOLEY, M.E., LL.D., D.E., Dean

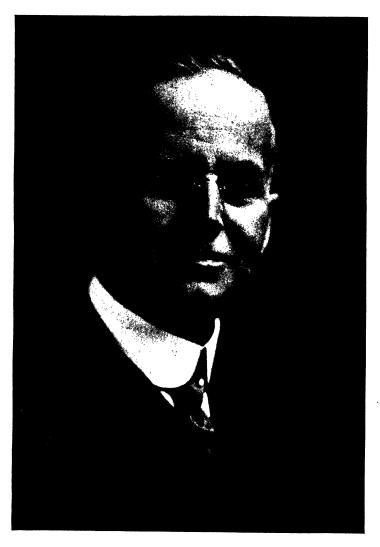

THE original Act of 1837 provided that Engineering should be one of the departments in the University. But it was not until 1853-54 that the first professor in this branch was appointed, the first class of two men being graduated with the degree of Civil Engineer in 1860. A chair of Military Engineering was established June 27, 1861, instruction being given in the spring of 1862, but was abandoned in 1869. A School of Mines was established in 1865, and the degree of Mining Engineer conferred for the first time in 1867. To Professor DeVolson Wood is due largely the credit for those early ventures of the University into new fields of engineering. Professor Wood resigned in 1872 to accept a chair in Stevens Institute of Technology, founded in 1870. The Legislature of 1875 appropriated money for a School of Mines; that year William H. Pettee was appointed Professor of Mining Engineering. The same act provided for a chair of architecture and design; and Mr. W. L. B. Jenney was appointed to that chair March 29, 1876. In 1877 the necessary appropriation for the continuance of the work in mining and in architecture was not made. Professor Pettee resigned, and was reappointed Professor of Geology in charge of Mining Engineering. In this way occasional degrees in mining engineering were conferred, the last in 1896.

Engineering was taught in the Literary College until 1895, then was made a separate department with Professor Charles E. Greene as Dean. Following his death in 1903, the present Dean was appointed in February, 1904, together with Professor Joseph B. Davis as Associate Dean. Professor Davis resigned his office in 1908, and Professor William H. Butts took his place as Assistant Dean.

Architecture was reestablished in 1905, being assigned to the Department of Engineering during its development period. Professor Emil Lorch, head of Architecture, performs the duties of Assistant Dean for architectural students, but the Dean and Secretary continue to serve for both departments. In January, 1915, the title of the Departments was changed to the present title, Colleges of Engineering and Architecture.

Mechanical Engineering was reestablished in 1881; followed by entirely new branches:-Electrical Engineering in 1889, Chemical Engineering in 1898 and Marine Engineering in 1900.

The degrees conferred on graduation until 1881 were Civil and Mining Engineer. But since then the bachelor's degree has been used, the professional degree being conferred only as a higher degree. Beginning with and after Commencement, 1916, Bachelor of Science in Engineering will be conferred on all engineering graduates, and Bachelor of Science in Architecture on all graduates in Architecture. But the legend of the diploma will contain a reference to the course of study pursued.

HENRY EARLE RIGGS, A.B., C.E.

Professor and head of the Department of Civil Engineering, a civil and consulting engineer of recognized ability, he is a man with a breadth of view, a sense of humor and an understanding of men and motives that endear him not alone to his own students but to all who may say, "I knew him." He has so imbued the department of which he is head with the spirit of simple friendliness and cooperation between faculty and students that he has in reality made of it a fraternal organization.

The Engineering Exhibit

The Colleges of Engineering and Architecture hold an Engineering Exhibit every two years. The exhibit is for the purpose of demonstrating to all students of the University and to visitors at large the work which the students of the College have accomplished and that which they are carrying on at the present. It is a student affair pure and simple, its entire conception, development and management being in the hands of the students.

The general chairman of the exhibit committee of this year was elected from the senior class in December. He then appointed men to represent each department of the College. The committeemen have already been working for some time and if we may be allowed to prophecy a little at the time of writing, we will say that this year's exhibit is going to be the "biggest and best ever."

History of Senior Engineers

"A-ll a-board. Train No. 1916 on the Higher Education Route."

"A-ll a-board!"

and the second second

"A-ll a-board!"

"Train for Freshville, Sophburg, Juniortown, Senior City and intermediate points."

The big jostling crowd pressed closer to the ticket windows where General Passenger Agent Dean Cooley, aided by Assistant Passenger Agent Dean Butts approved or rejected the passports from High School City or Prep School Town which every individual presented. Passing along to the next window, the crowd bought tickets for the first stage of the journey from Treasurer Campbell. No one requested return trip tickets or special tickets with stop-over privileges for any of the points en route. It was later learned that a stock of the latter variety was kept on hand.

After seeing the last ticket purchaser on board, Conductor McAllister consulted Brakeman Hirth's watch, signalled to the locomotive cab in which Fireman Hallaway was laboriously shovelling coal; then Engineer Haag pulled back the throttle and started us on our long journey.

When once we were well under way there was a general rush for the diner where we received our first surprise. Consultation of the menu revealed the fact that we were not to be allowed to pick our own dishes. The plan was strictly American and we all swallowed the same meal composed mainly of heavy foods, hard to digest, a meal noticeably lacking in desserts. Besides, we were allowed no lunches. One food that was especially hard to digest was listed as Descripto. It caused more than a few of us the sharp pangs of indigestion.

The country was full of surprises during the first part of the journey and we were kept busy adjusting ourselves to the rapid changes in scenery and acclimating ourselves to the new country generally. Now we were travelling in the depths of a canyon where the steeply rising sides cut off all view of the surrounding country. Again we were out in the more open country, but so unused were we to great perspectives and glorious distances that we often failed to appreciate the great reaches of our Alma Mater which spread out about us.

The journey passed rapidly for the majority of the passengers. One day some bandits, whom we afterwards found to be inhabitants of the next Province of Sophburg tried to board our train, but after a brief struggle were driven off with losses. This we learned from the authorities was an annual occurrence named the Fresh-Soph contest.

With the aid of the General Passenger Agent, we inaugurated the Mentor System, thereby getting into close touch with the officials of the road and gaining valuable advice concerning our journey. Along in February we stopped for water and, sad to relate, lost a number of passengers who strayed too far from the straight and narrow track. Among these, unfortunately, was our engineer; before continuing our journey therefore, we picked another in the person of Horace Corey.

The trip, from this point, was rather more pleasant, as the passengers gradually became more intimately acquainted with one another; with but one or two fatalities the train came to a stop at a town unknown to all. The sign on the station read "Sophburg." Rumor spread that there was to be a big celebration in town that night, so we all got off to attend. It was both magnificent and impressive; here it was that we shed the clothes and manners we had brought with us from Freshville, and extravagantly tossed the former into a huge fire which the Sophomore had built.

The summer was soon upon us with its heat and dust. Most of us decided to spend the languid hours in Sophburg and continue our journey the next fall. Some, however, took a small excursion to a neighboring amusement park called Summer School and from all reports had an enjoyable time.

On September 29, 1913, we bought tickets and again boarded the old train. Unfortunately several of those who had been our fellow passengers found the joys of Sophburg so captivating that they had decided not to continue their journey. The train pulled out, manned by a new crew, consisting of Engineer Hyde, Fireman Finkenstaedt, Brakeman Milliken and Conductor Jeter.

Under the skillful hand of our engineer, the train ran smoothly; and such harmony prevailed that when in February we stopped to fix a hot-box, only a few strolled too far away to hear the whistle.

A little further along our way we became so restless that the engineer suggested that we stop at some suitable spot and have a "Pow-wow". The suggestion was greeted with enthusiasm and we then and there inaugurated the Pow-wow custom. Our social boosters conferred with a party from a train which was on the next track, concerning a certain Soph Prom. This function was given, with great success, at the next station which was called Armory. Gradually as the spring came, we grew weary of the trip, and when the train at last pulled slowly in at "Juniortown," we scrambled out eagerly from every available door and window.

On September 28, 1914, when we gathered at the station, we found ourselves suddenly involved in a heated discussion. The trouble was that we were unable to decide upon an engineer. Finally after much delay we decided that Don Smith knew more about a locomotive than Fran Mack and so we gave him the job. Harry Buell got the job as fireman, while Howdy Phillips and Bob Hadley were made brakeman and conductor respectively.

Our train consisted now entirely of Pullmans. We read the impressive and appropriate names on the sides of the coaches and chose according to the way they struck our individual fancies. There were Civil, Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical and Marine. On entering, we found our coaches something on the order of buffet cars, for meals were served us with menu cards particularly adapted to our special needs. The European plan was used and although we were all required to assimilate certain staples, we were allowed to pick out a few dishes to our own liking. The selected dishes were more or less of the dessert class. On the other hand, some of us were taking re-orders on certain dishes which had not agreed with us in Sophburg.

The grade of the roadbed through Juniortown was level and it didn't take much effort to keep the train going. The surrounding Alma Mater country was pleasant to gaze upon. We were able to get glimpses of the end of our journey and a better perspective of the whole road and the great country through which we were speeding.

Soon Johnny Lyons and Jack Benton were given passes in the form of an "M," because of their prowess in football. Aside from this the trip passed uneventfully until just before our usual February stop. Here a great discussion arose concerning our social liberties. It seems that the officials had been so displeased with a few of the passengers on the train two years ahead of ours that they had forbidden the continuance of the Junior Hop. Through the efforts of Engineer Smith and Dick Jeter, we did our share together with the other Junior classes in having the higher officials repeal their decision and allow us to stop over and give the Hop. Thus to us belongs part of the honor of re-establishing the Hop under the direct management of the Junior classes.

In the spring, the train stopped at a picturesque spot where we got out and held another Pow-wow. The momentary relief from the prescribed diet aboard the train was too much for our engineer and for one or two others. The officials accordingly ruled that they would have to wait for the next train. We left them standing by the side of the road, a warning to all trains that should follow, like a sign which read in conspicuous capitals "DANGEROUS CURVE—GO SLOW".

From this point Fireman Buell took charge of the throttle and carried us safely on to the City of Seniority. Just before reaching this city, Jack Benton was presented with another pass because of the baseball ability he had shown en route. Many of us decided to remain in Seniority for the hot months, others decided that the town of Summer Session looked inviting. The rear coach, filled with very CIVIL young men with plumb-bobs and transits, was unhooked from the train and with an engine all its own started up a sandy branch line. For further account of this side trip see description at the end of the list of passengers.

On October 5, 1915, we commenced the last stage of our journey. Several passengers who had missed the preceding train bought tickets for ours; and so in spite of the loss of those members who had left us because they were subject to car-sickness we numbered 263. The new crew answered the following roll-call: Engineer, Howdy Phillips; Fireman, Johnny Breymann; Brakeman, Tom Trelfa; and Conductor, Howdy Keeler.

During the first part of the trip, Jack Norton was presented with a pass signed by Coach Yost and our brakeman, since he was familiar with the rural highways, was chosen to captain the cross-country team.

Just before February, representatives from our train and from several of the trains in back of ours worked out an Honor System. It was adopted by the passengers from all of the trains and when it was tried at the February stop it was found to work out excellently. As we started on again we could see that the idea of the system had gained a good foothold among our own passengers and among those of the following trains. We can only conjecture as to where the influence of the ideal upon which the system is founded will finally lead. But judging from our own experience it will offer many charming opportunities to those who adopt it sincerely.

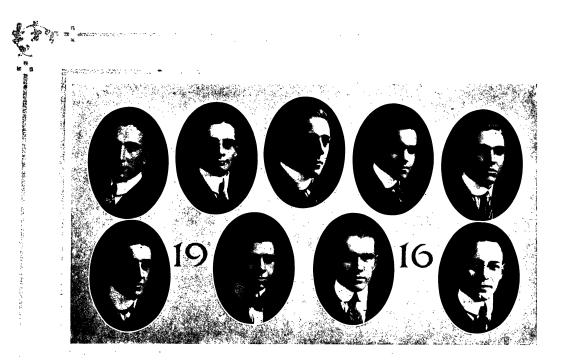

Later in February a serious accident occurred in car "Electrical". The back E.M.F. from a recently installed dynamo overcame the usual constant potential and severely shocked several of the passengers.

In this part of the journey the roadbed was very even and the riding good. The meals were wellserved. There were numerous desserts. Indeed, some of us subsisted entirely on light lunches. We travelled chiefly through the momentum we had already gained. From the heights we had now reached we had a good view of the Country of our Alma Mater and of the mile-stones we had left by the roadside as we passed. In looking back over the whole length of the Higher Education Route, we could realize what a felatively short distance it had after all brought us. Ahead of us, far beyond the end of the line, stretching away to the farthest reaches of the country and even beyond that to the dim horizon, we could see a broad highway, which we knew we would probably have to travel.

All that remained now for us to do was to slide down comfortably in our seats and take a well earned rest while the train coasted on to the end of the line, where the conductor would wake us with the words, "Commencementville, everybody out!"

LOUIS HOLMES BOYNTON

In appreciation of his sincere interest in our work, his sympathetic teaching and example as an architect which has instilled in us not only knowledge, but also respect for our profession, the 1916 Architectural Class dedicates this section of the Michiganensian to Professor Louis Holmes Boynton.

The 1915 Architectural Class History

Back—oh, almost in the beginning of time we all had ambitions, yet all strangely alike. Our hearts were torn and our minds wearied trying to solve the problem, whether we were to be engineers on railroad locomotives, bandits like Jesse James, or merely Indian fighters. All three held forth seductive inducements. We felt somewhat the awe and dread responsibilities that attended when we leaned out of the cab window and felt the rush of the night wind against our face, while the hundred-ton locomotive,—if they had them then,—tore its way thru the darkness drawing hundreds of trusting passengers; or the thrill of glancing along the barrel of an ominous steel blue forty-five, and commanding our frightened victims to "throw up your hands," while our trusty pals looted the baggage car. But man proposes and God disposes and we came to Michigan to be architects.

But we were not architects in every sense of the word. We enrolled with the engineers, we went to the engineering assemblies, we attended the engineering functions, tho even at that time we rebelled somewhat by having an architectural smoker or dance once in a while. There was the rush that year, that we, and the other freshmen of course, lost and the pushball contest that we won. We drew dots and lines, mouldings and stone courses, and we went to our first finals.and some of us got thru and some of us—well, we were more convinced than ever that we should have been bandits or something of the kind.

The second semester we began to realize that we were architects, though it was sometimes hard to convince the faculty, for we made the acquaintance of "sketch problems," of "renderings," and found out that life was not all roses, though we did locate Ypsi. Then came June and we dispersed, some to play, some to work, and also some to summer school.

After we had swaggered around the "home town" for a few months we were glad to come back. That year we elected our own class officers, and Sherwood Holt was chosen as our president. We began to diverge from the engineers and their ways. To be sure we attended the same classes in some courses, but we were more certain that we were architects. We designed, we sketched, we stayed up nights before problems were due, so much so in fact, that when some engineer contemptuously referred to the "pipe course" we were quite ready for war. We began to get acquainted with our faculty-distinctly ours, too, for tho we attended some classes in the engineering and "lit" departments, our classes were quite exclusively our own. We floundered helplessly in the wake of "Mac's" swiftly flowing discourse and lightning figures on "beams, walls, and footings." We learned the dread of "Bev's" soft pencil, the, "Oh! I-ah-wouldn't do it just that way," and Kimball's maze of ancient history, concerning what was what in Greece and Rome. Then too, there was Prof. Lorch, the "King," to whom wewent for help or because we were called, and under whom we first began to see that there was something behind it all that we were still to get, and that four walls and a roof and some openings, haphazardly garnished with all the architectural ornament we could think of, was not a design. Then just as we grew used to the yoke we were thrown out to a summer's pleasure. Again the weeks fled; we whispered fervent promises to write often, and came back.

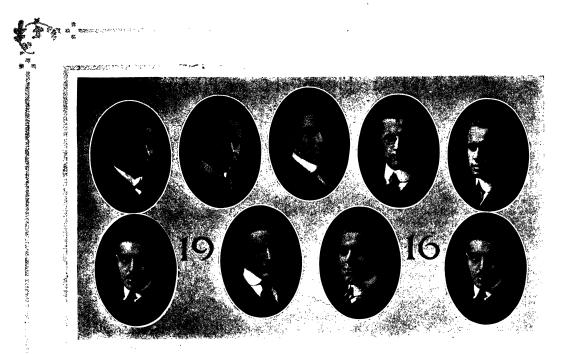

Juniors! We wondered where the Hop money was coming from, and some of us actually got it. "Rolly" Westbrook was our president that year. It was quite a year in some ways. We toyed with this course and fought with that. We went down under the storm of "Bev's" Italian, French, and Spanish history names to emerge again when we finally got to England. We designed great buildings. We became the College of Architecture. The divorce from the Engineering College was complete. Our department basketball team won its numerals that year, Holt and Hammond of our class were among the first to wear an "A" on the campus.

Always,—the greatest year is the last, the end is in sight, there is the possibility of getting out into the world to "do something." The joy of the prospects of the coming freedom to some measure tone down the real regret we must feel at leaving. We are bound to miss the genial atmosphere of the drafting room, with its pleasant companionship and sometimes rather caustic, but "kidding" remarks. This year, as in the Junior year, Westbrook stands at the helm. On the batteries of the departmental Indoor Baseball team, was "Deek" Cameron. Moninger was our representative on the Student Council.

The future is always vague and indefinite, but it is safe to say that no matter where we are and under what circumstances, we will always be able to look back to what was a most happy substitution for our earliest ambitions. Besides, Jesse James is hopelessly out of style and Lo! the poor Indian, has been taught to wear his hair short, and places more stress on the pursuit of civilization than on the pursuit of the scalp.

Statistics of Senior Engineers

In compiling these statistics, In presenting all the dope, I've spent many weary hours— You'll be satisfied—I hope.

But let us all remember That in the lines below No offence is offered— Ye reap but what ye sow.

The man who is most popular Has white hair and a smile. He's known as "Whitey" Headman, Altho his looks beguile.

Alas! We have no women In our graduating class, But substituting here and there The masculine will pass.

Our most popular young lady, From all our classmates' views, Unanimously elected, Is none other than "Lyn" Hughes.

Our handsomest man is Fikret With hair of raven hue. I think we did our level best In choosing him—Don't you?

But there is one who thinks he is Our most handsome man. His name you know is Heinrich, Our oratory fan.

But now, alas, the female Breaks in upon the scene. The prettiest girl is chosen. Ted Marble is the queen.

But when it comes to studies With no dissenting vote Bob Archer is elected, A student of some note.

The most successful bluffer Is an office of repute. It was handed to Ned Brucker And there was no dispute.

A man who studies all the time Is sometimes called a grind. Bill Hindman seemed to be about The biggest we could find.

What man among us now is called Our shrewdest politician? Two men are shrewd—we flip a coin— Don Smith gets the position.

The biggest Fusser in our Class, Unanimous election, Is Harley Warner,—Don't you think It suits him to perfection?

The sportiest guy within our midst Who stands first in his line Is—But surely you've all seen him— His name is "Cholly" Klein.

But there is one who would dispute Our "Cholly's" seat of fame. He thinks he's just as sporty. Hick Woodbury is his name.

The first man to get married— Of course, we hate to say; But seeing Hick is now engaged, Why, let him name the day!

The Law School

HENRY MOORE BATES, Ph.B., LL.B., Dean

THIS school was provided for in the Organic Act in March, 1859. It was opened on October 8, and included three professorships, which were later styled Marshall, Kent and Jay chairs. James V. Campbell, Charles Walker and Thomas M. Cooley were elected to fill these chairs, with Professor Campbell acting as dean. The first class was graduated in 1860. The original home of the school was the old chapel, and not until October, 1863, did it have a home of its own. The building was reconstructed and greatly enlarged in 1893. Again in 1898 it was practically demolished and rebuilt as it now stands. A fourth professorship was established in 1886, and named for the Honorable Richard Fletcher, of Boston. This chair was first filled by Ashley Palmer. The fifth chair was the Tappan professorship established in 1879, first filled by Alpheus Felch. In 1871 Professor Cooley became dean of the department. The original course consisted of two terms, each six months long, lasting from October through March. The instruction was entirely by lectures, and at the completion of the course the degree of LL.B. was given. In 1877 an entrance examination in English was required. In 1884 the terms were lengthened to nine months each, and in 1895 a third year was required for the completion of the course. The Practice Court as it now stands was established in the year 1892-1893. In 1912 the entrance requirements were increased to include at least one year of college work and an optional fourth year was added to the law course. Beginning with the academic year of 1915-1916, the entrance requirements were increased to include at least two years of college work.

EDSON R. SUNDERLAND

Gratitude akin to obligation demands an expression of our appreciation of the benefits and assistance which we have received from one with whom it has been our privilege to be associated during the past three years.

Realizing as we do that only an implicit obedience to every call of duty, and an unwavering exemplification in his daily life of the highest and noblest qualities and the most manly principles have given to him a leader's position as a student, teacher, and writer, we prize the more highly the many courtesies extended to us by him.

Warmed by his friendliness and good fellowship, we, the members of the Senior Law Class of 1916, take this opportunity of expressing our high esteem for Edson R. Sunderland.

It is the Truth that Helps

RUTH is stranger than fiction, so we will tell the truth.

The Fall of 1913 saw a motley gathering of A. B. men, erstwhile junior and soph lits assembled at the call of a figurehead from the Student Council to officially launch the 1916 law class. The bottle of wine which usually accompanies a launching was notably absent, but all the other features were in evidence. After a stormy session marked by the efforts of pseudo-orators and chestnut politicians, Roscoe Spencer, present address unknown, was selected as the first captain.

Our maiden cruise was more or less uneventful, the faculty mid-year ambush furnishing most of the excitement. Walter Morris stepped into the calcium, though, when he annexed the oratory title in the State Peace contest. Also the relay team won the department championship, due more to leg work in getting to the gym to accept forfeits than to that displayed on the track.

Our second start saw Harry Bell at the helm. This was a very turbulent voyage. The football team was runner-up in the race for the campus championship, but forced to finish in that position through the amateur work of the referee in the final contest. Proverbial sob! Although handicapped by the doughy* I. Lash Thomas as leader, the baseball team won the campus championship. An observant member discovered a host of campus celebrities in the class who had not as yet acquired a pin, so he organized a campus honor society which still flourishes in our midst. It is notable also that during this year the class produced a great crop of office seekers and all-round candidates for campus offices.

We weighed anchor for the final voyage with Leroy Scanlan in the pilot-house. Despite the superhuman efforts of McCall, McNamara & Company and the loyal support of Adna Johnson's Senior Law Band et al, the class eleven was again forced to take the second position in campus football at the hands of the combined mouth-carpenters.

The committee stole all of Ross Granger's honors when they superintended the "Crease" dance. The annual sheet was a masterpiece of journalistic ability, the editors thereby acquiring more enemies than the umpire. As we go to press the basketball team is making strenuous efforts to keep out of the cellar in the campus league and from present indications bids fair to accomplish its purpose, but will have plenty of company.

As we reflect on past triumphs we find that the class roll is replete with the names of a veritable galaxy of campus stars. The stalwart Frank McHale won undying fame by holding the entire Crimson line at arms length throughout the whole of one sunny October afternoon, and F. G. Millard held down a like position on the Varsity during the past season. It has been said that George Labadie, baseball captain, can judge within a few inches at what spot a baseball sent into the air in New York would land in California. "Tommy" McNamara has acquired the title of the human 42 centimeter through his performances on the mound.

On the publications we have F. F. McKinney as Managing Editor of The Michigan Daily and "Jack" Leonard as Business Manager; Louis Bruch is Editor of the Michiganensian, and Paul Eger is Business Manager of the book of Who's Who and Where.

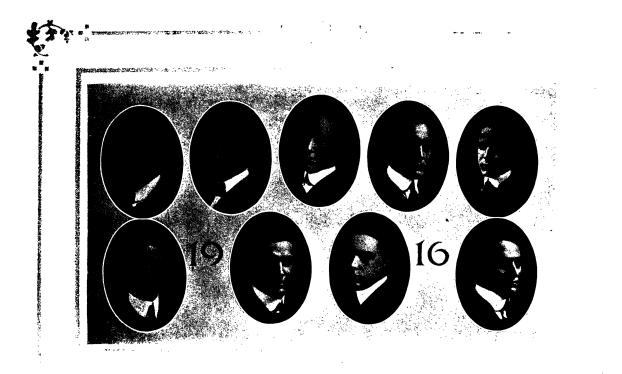

Wilbur Brucker, Harry Parker, K. M. Stevens, W. J. Goodwin, and R. S. Munter have won fame for Michigan on the debating teams; and A. R. Johnson, Ray Mills, T. H. Tapping, and F. G. Millard are officials of the Athletic Associations.

Old man Pan with his pipe had nothing on Leroy Scanlan, our eccentric ivory artist, for the whole campus has swayed to his syncopated melodies.

Having finally dropped anchor, we prepare to embark singly, each in his own little boat. It is with regret that we leave the staunch old ship but each one of us has hopes that our new craft prove as safe and trustworthy.

Recent Important Decisions

(Ye humble Ed. acknowledges his mental indebtedness to the invaluable aid furnished by such admirable works as Paisley on Domestic Relations, Nichols on Bills and Notes (vest pocket edition) and McCall on The First and Last Clear Chance.)

ADVERSE POSSESSION*** TACKING SUCCESSFUL POSITIONS—Plaintiff, one EUGENE R. McCALL, contested the defendant's right to the office of "Most Popular Man" as the defendant, Herbert J. Potter had openly and publicly conceded himself to be. The question was raised whether or not this defendant could tack his prior holdings of Queen of the May held in June, 1907, and High School Orator, as popular positions to establish a title in himself by public subscription. H. BLAIR SUTTER, L. DOWNEY COOPER, I. LASH THOMAS and others with catchy names interpleaded as Co-Defendants but were stricken out as surplusage. Held, the defendant can use the reverse English and draw unto his present claim any former titles he has acquired, thereby cinching his right to aforesaid office. McCALL et al v. POTTER, 1 Breeze 1492.

This case is novel in that it reads like fiction. It is, however, in accord with the defendant's view. Bumpkin, J., pulled a good one in stating that after the prior honors had been admitted in evidence for and by the defendant, the jury could easily have been swayed to the belief that popularity was truly in Potter's Field. There is a conflict of authority as to whether the other defendants should be merely stricken out in a case like this or hanged. The court's rulings that as to the plaintiff "nil capiat", and as to these excess defendants "Pooh Pooh", were well rendered.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW—ELEVEN HOUR LAW—CLASS LEGISLATION. A statute, Bate's Code 666,999, provided that eleven hours of work must be successfully completed by a Senior Law during the second semester to entitle him to a degree. Plaintiff, L. M. SPRAGUE, suing for a class, seeks to restrain the enforcement of this statute on the ground of class legislation, denial of due process, abuse of police power and other Constitutional phrases. HELD, That Plaintiff being elected by his class as their biggest grind, he cannot maintain this suit in the capacity in which he appears before the court, as a "grind" is not in any sense representative of that class. That as the Eleven Hour Rule is only a question of degree, the statute can not be held unconstitutional.

SPRAGUE v. Law School, 1 Cram. 23.

This case is important in that it introduces a new element for future class-room definitions of police power. Here, where the statute was enacted by men who wore no stars or helmets nor carried clubs, the court expressly stated that there "wan't no abuse of perlice powahs kez they wan't no perlice." Hereafter, we must look behind the statute. The holding of the principal case as to the "real party in interest" was controlled by the case of DUNTEN v. Everybody, 2 Pol. 13, where Plaintiff was denied the right to establish his claim as the shrewdest politician. Here the Court being called upon to decide a political question said they couldn't treat politicians civilly, so refused jurisdiction. To the same effect see FITTS v. FRARY, 6 Femme, 10 P. M., in which the court refused to decide which party was the biggest fusser, applying the maxim: "He who comes into Equity must come cleanshaven."

SALES—FAILURE OF TITLE—Defendant, W. LESLIE MILLER, transferred his title of "Handsomest Man" to Plaintiff, FRANK M. McHALE, for a valuable consideration, to-wit; one pack of Nebos, with implied warranty of the same (i.e., the title—not the Nebos). At this time there was an outstanding title to this honor in one O. THIEL which was paramount to Defendant's, who had mistakenly thought that he was entitled to the office. Defendant's title being quieted and having utterly failed—Opinion of the Justices, 24 En Masse 25, plaintiff brought suit on the warranty. HELD, he can recover. McHALE v. MILLER, 14 B. V. D. 92.

It all depends upon the condition a party is in to recover. In one state he can have hopes; in another, he must have more upon which to successfully press his suit. The weight of authority is with the principal case, its rule being followed by 3 states and one professor while only 42 states and the House of Lords are contra. The court could well have followed the lead of GRINSTEAD v. Al. Comers, 5 Beaut. 15, in which Plaintiff was refused legal recognition of the title of "Most Popular Girl", though the court conceded Plaintiff's claim O. K. There His Honor disgustedly said he was not supervising any Beauty Contest and adjourned court for the day. So in the case we are considering, the court would have been justified in dismissing court for a week.

WATERS—WHAT CONSTITUTES A REAL COURSE—Plaintiff's lot was one of four parcels abutting on a waterway. The lot of the Plaintiff was known as Property 4. Plaintiff tried to enjoin the Defendants from using the waterway as a means of passage. HELD, The waterway where it touched Plaintiff's realty, being incident to the ownership of the lot, should be considered a real course and be designated Property 4 also. And even though not a way of necessity yet as it was easy of travel by the Defendants, it was to be considered in law as a snap course, and therefore subject to the crowds.

Rood v. Senior Laws, 1 Pipe 22.

The cases are not uniform on this point, but dressy. This court seems to base its decision on the "40-pages-tomorrow" rule, which is too lengthy to discuss here. However as the court held that a snap course is one easy of passage and further that Property 4 could be so considered, we expect a storm of disapproval from those western benches which have never overruled the dicta in Matthew Manning's case. Surely, they cannot follow the reasoning in the principal case. Neither can we.

BOOK REVIEWS

WHY IS A SENIOR, by Adna R. Johnson, first edition, in one volume; Neithercut Bros., 1916, pp. x, 192.

The fact that the work before me is in its first edition speaks very eloquently for the originality of purpose, ingenuity of thought and undaunted nerve possessed by the author, who is well known for his admirable treatise entitled, "Once a Mortgage Always a Mortgage."

About half of the book is given up to a consideration of nothing in particular, and from this preface the author laboriously gathers his many threads together and presents the Senior as he has found him. He shows him at his rooming-quarters and here draws an appealing pen picture of his endeavors to draw money from home. His remarkable discovery of the Senior at his studies leads the author to dwell at some length on the oddities and peculiarities of his subject. A shiny, new idea is presented at this point by the learned writer when he insists that, contrary to all venerable superstition and pedagogical belief, the Senior is at heart, human. In closing, the query as presented by the title of this book is unanswered, as was expected by all those reading the finis first.

It will be generally admitted that Blackstone's Commentaries was the most extraordinary performance in the history of legal writing. Suffice it to say, that Mr. Johnson's notable work makes Blackstone's effort a one-ring affair in comparison, and places Coke under the wide-spreading palm away from the sun. This book will be a welcome addition to any library as the binding is very fetchy.

THE LAW AND I, by Maxwell I. Pitkin, Some Story Professor of Law in the Tooloose University. Translated by Thomas R. McNamara, Ball Professor of Law at Diamond College: Brown, Brownell & Company, 1916, pp. lviii, 605.

After a very interesting opening toast, this volume proceeds to bring out into the calcium those experiences of the author which had previously been calcimined. To present chronologically the epochmaking stages of the author's travels in the Law seems to be the purpose of this work. The scope displayed is remarkable and a keen insight into the various institutions during three periods is vividly portrayed. The Law is personified as an individual with whom the venerable author is ever at outs. But as page 464 is reached, a lukewarm friendship springs up between them, which, as the story nears its close, ripens into a pseudo-companionship, so to speak.

The author humorously relates a big game hunt he enjoyed while trailing the springing and shifting uses, and also of his search for a perpetuity. He here asserts that while on one of his forays (not 4 A's), he destroyed a so-called indestructible future estate. If such was the case, (and we hope it was), another enemy of the Law was vanquished.

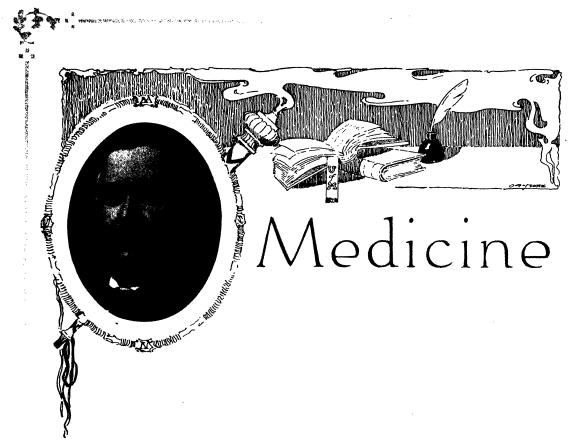

The chapters presenting his own brand of philosophy introduce an element heretofore unknown to legal philosophists. To one who appreciates trite prose and has naught else to do, it is easy to read and worth reading.

Medical School

VICTOR CLARENCE VAUGHAN, M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., Dean

The School of Medicine and Surgery was brought into existence by the organization of a faculty by the University on May 15, 1850. The School formally opened the following October with Abram Sager as president. The course consisted of lectures which extended over a period of six months, from the first of October to the last of March. Laboratory instruction was furnished from the beginning, and this was one of the first medical schools to supply practical work in inorganic and physiological chemistry. The need of extension in laboratory instruction became apparent early and in 1872 the laboratory of Histology was procured. This was followed by one for Physiology in 1884, Hygiene in 1888, and Clinical Medicine in 1891. Laboratory instruction has always been thorough. In the same year the University Hospital was opened, accommodating about eighty patients. In 1880 the course was lengthened to three years, and in 1890 to four years. About the year 1890 a six-year course leading to the degrees of A.B. and M.D. was offered. This combined course has proven so satisfactory that it has been adopted by most universities in English speaking countries. A valuable addition to the hospitals is the Psychopathic Ward which the Legislature some time ago provided. In this way the medical student is furnished with an opportunity for the study of insanity and nervous disorders. The present Medical Building was completed in 1903. It is a well designed and complete structure. The hospital now provides more than three hundred beds.

History of the 1916 Medical Class

THE various classes of all the different departments from the campus were standing in Huston's one day just after the commencement exercises in Hill Auditorium. "Speaking of taking an anaesthetic" said the Senior Medic, "I hope none of you miss anything like the dream I had. It's better than a Cannabis Indica party any day. You see it was this way: I had to have some 'cons' removed, so was sent to the University Hospital and directly to the anaesthetic room. Before I had time to realize what was happening, an orderly placed me on the table, a stethoscope was put onto my chest by a man in a long robe and a cap which came down over his face; while he listened to my heart, he said to those about him, 'He's alright, nothing but "Hy"', and walked out. Then for the first time in my career I found myself looking Miss Davis in the eye. She put a strip of rubber and cotton over my forehead, a very bad smelling cone over my nose and I could hear her saying in a tone that sounded miles away, 'Take a good long deep breath now, that's good—ps-u-u-u-gh'. Then as a nurse came in out of the athetine the ard one of the students reading a history; he paused, and I heard another voice say, 'A very common case in this clinic'; then I took another long deep breath and as the nurse went back into the other room she stood holding the door open long enough for me to hear what was going on in there, and between the splashing of the water while the surgeons were scrubbing their hands these words reached me, 'Present illness began four years ago, onset acute, and patient says he has suffered continuously ever since''. Then it all came back to me:

"We gathered at the Medical building one morning early in the Fall of 1912, to listen to the opening exercises and address of our dean to be, already known to us as 'Piggy'. We all sat high up in the amphitheatre and gazed over the heads of Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores, at the Faculty and others who had gone before us and made a name and reputation for themselves in what was to be our chosen profession. After hearing for the first time that ever welcome 'Friends and fellow travelers', and later, 'So much has been said this morning that I feel unable to say anything', we passed out of the building and stood waiting to get one good look at the men we were to face so often in the coming years.

"The next day we again assembled in the East Lecture room and for the first time took a good 'whiff' of the odor of the Anatomy lab,—(the ether must have been coming thick and fast just about then). That same morning we bought supplies and in the afternoon returned to the building to hear Dr. Huber's laboratory lecture about 'skeins', 'polar bodies' 'mitosis' etc., and to draw pictures of cells from an onion tip.

"Soon class activities really started and with the aid of a Student Council representative, a class president was elected—Edgar Beardslee being chosen to lead us for the first year—but he soon joined the band of Benedicts and by so doing was lost to us outside of the class room.

"Social activities were now planned and a dance was given at Packard Academy with a very large attendance. The next item of interest was the meeting at which the honor system was adopted, to which we have adhered very strongly ever since.

"About this time I felt strong arms take hold of me and push me back upon the table, and a whispered voice said 'He's in the excitement stage now'. Then I felt a strong desire to get up, push aside doctors, students, nurses, orderlies or anyone who might chance to be in my way and run as far as I could from the place. The reason for this was that I had thought of the first 'spot' and Dr. Streeter had handed me a very misshapen piece of someone's anatomy and said, 'Show me where the Vena Cava comes off'. Another deep long breath and I settled down resting easier again, and seemed to be soaring up among the clouds, floating along carefree and irresponsible,—the first vacation had come. But in a short time is Mo-o-o-n-ey.' Suddenly a quick flash of something, men and women hurrying hither and thither, little black things squirming about, small flames burning everywhere, the rattle of test tubes and above all a voice kept repeating, 'Your attention for a moment', and in the lull that followed I recognized the Bacteriology lab.

"Dr. McCotter left us about this time, going to Vanderbilt University to take the chair of Anatomy there and in his place Dr. McGarry gave us a short course in art,—at vaudeville speed.

"Our first real vacation came none too soon and ended just as fast. The Sophomore year was ushered in by a Tammany Hall proceeding and George Watt was the leader for that term.

"Athletics now had their run of enthusiasm, a basketball team, a football team, and, later in the spring, a baseball team, each making a showing such that several members of the class appeared on the campus wearing caps which bore the numerals 19M16.

"During my reveries I had been wheeled into the operating room, and as I started to think of Dr. Warthin, I felt a deep cut, heard a voice calling, 'haemostats!' 'sponges!' but to me it sounded like -'Next!-Next!-NEXT!' I next could see Dr. Vaughan dividing his class into the 'Sheep' and the 'Goats', and then I seemed to see him again talking to a very large audience; but above all things I noticed many men who seemed to be paying no attention at all to what the speaker was saying, for they were looking not at him but across the amphitheatre where a great array of many colors was moving and jostling about. And then I remembered this same group of men as they stood outside of the building and watched a parade go by, for it was the second semester and the class in Hygiene open to 'Lit' girls was in full sway. The second year was almost past but as a closing chapter, our president, who was intending to enter Harvard the next Fall, gave the class a Banquet at Newberry Hall, Miss DuMont acting as Toastmistress.

"The Junior year began with several members absent when the roll was called, and also for the first time the class was now divided into sections so that many who had been working together were separated, but new partnerships soon sprang up and new friends were found.

"Another campus honor society, the Galens, came into prominence about this time, inaugurated and made up of members from the Medical department, twelve men from the Junior class being initiated. New lockers were placed in the Hospital halls but remained unused because of the exorbitant tax imposed by the superintendent for the privilege of using them.

"In the social line an All-Medic Smoker was held at the Michigan Union, attended by practically every man in the Medical School and most of the Faculty. This function helped to break the monotony of the very uncomfortable seats in the amphitheatre or the routine work in the laboratories, and also satisfy the cravings of the inner man by indulging in doughnuts and the cider which flowed so generously, but above all there was the pleasure of smoking free cigarettes to one's heart's content. Every one present was put into a joyous frame of mind by the speakers, especially by Bill Funk's recital of 'That Old Sweetheart of Mine', and Dr. Lombard's pet story, 'I won't shoot Horace just now, but you just wait'.

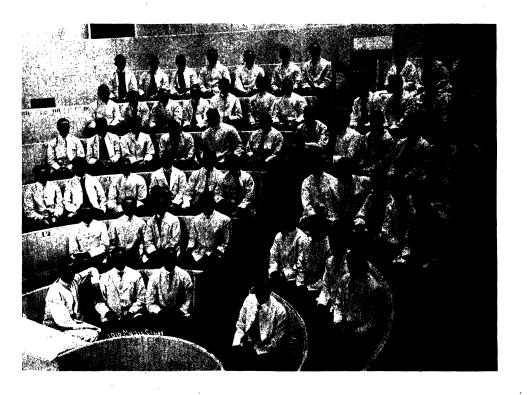

"During the vacation period between the Junior and Senior years three members of the class answered 'the call of the wild', faced a minister and said, 'I do,' so when school opened in the Fall there were more houses for rent.

"The Senior class now assembled for the last lap against time and the faculty,—mostly faculty— 64 strong, being very much strengthened by the addition of Vis, Herring, and Walthall, who had lingered by the wayside as instructors.

"I now seemed to be resting easy and taking the ether remarkably well, the reason for this being that for the first time in the history of the class, a whole year was to pass without written examinations. All went well, and I felt sure that the new system so adopted will be pronounced a success. At odd intervals, we would miss a man for a week or two, but when he returned he would tell us that he had secured a place as interne in some Hospital in the East, or in some Middle western city.

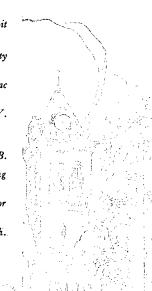

"I then forgot everything in detail, and the next I remember was that I heard some one say, 'Wake up and take this.' I opened my eyes and reached out my hand and this is what they gave me.

"'Where are you going to get it framed?' asked the Fresh Lit."

1916 Medic Statistics

THE last election of the Senior Medical class was held at a most opportune time, being before, during, and after a "Blue Book" by Dr. Parker. Dr. R. Bishop Canfield was chosen as the professor to whom the medical section of the book should be dedicated, winning this honor from Dr. Hewlett and Dr. Novy by a very narrow margin.

The presence of one word alone, and that word was "think", fairly stumped the entire class when it came to selecting the most beneficial course, for each and every one seemed to have a choice, but after the ballots had been carefully counted, "Internal Medicine" had the most followers. In casting the ballot for the next question on the election blank, humor, satire and seriousness all took a part, humor finally winning by voting Pathology as the biggest snap course, Roentgenology coming next, and those not quite understanding fully the meaning of what was meant by "snap" voted Hygiene third. For the most enjoyable course,—not meaning hour,—Genito-Urinary quiz took first in a walkaway, though Psychiatry gained somewhat on the home stretch, with Hygiene getting an occasional and straggling vote from some of the members who seemed to have ideas of grandeur and thought it was enjoyable that some members (?) had to be across the amphitheatre.

The most popular man was a neck and neck race between "Hap" Galbraith and "Harold" Henderson, while Lowe showed that another married man also had a lot of friends. The decision finally rested between the first two mentioned, and by saying, "It can't be done", the vote was called a tie.

The vote for the most popular girl brought out a candidate who carried off "severial" honors, being voted the most popular girl by a very large majority, running an exceptionally good race for the best student, winning the title of the jolliest girl by all but three votes, the prettiest girl by as great a number of admirers, and lastly the first girl to get married by all but one vote, due to the fact that some one is keeping a secret and voted for herself. This person who was chosen so many times for so many places is Miss Anna Dumont, who started out being "one of the boys" and has stayed with us ever since.

For the handsomest man "Doc" Youngquist came to the front with a rush and stayed there throughout the race, while the two "Bills"—Funk and Gordon—were fighting it out for first under the wire in the "Thinks he is" class.

While it is a known fact that many cast a vote for themselves or exchanged with a friend for the best student, one man was honest and said "There ain't no such animal". Vaughan, Henderson, Eberbach and Miss Dumont finished in the order named.

"The most successful bluffer"—Addison won his place four years ago in Physiology and took a lead which neither Currier nor Dieterle could overcome, though "Diet" did show real strength on two occasions.

The biggest grind was a repetition of the best student ballot, each and every one hoping to be able to show the "Old Folks at Home",—but, alas, alack and woe, that can be done by only one, "Tony" Lange, while Kingery can say he was second.

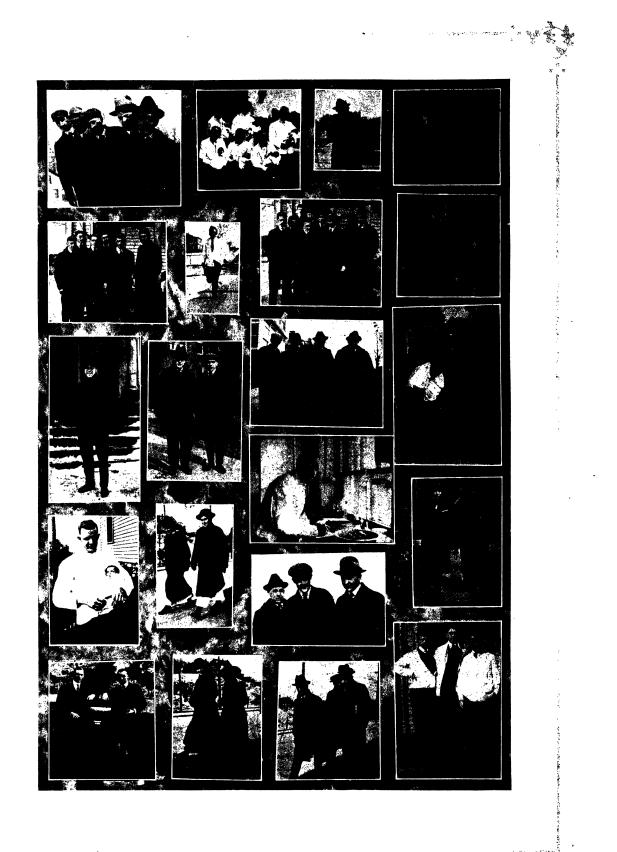

For the shrewdest politician only a few Tammany Hall followers started and the same number finished, they being "Bach" Eberbach, "Sam" Donaldson and "President" Lowe.

The keenest competition of the day occurred when the race for the biggest fusser started, but many who would have been glad to be so designated, and glad to get the honor, did not receive a single vote. Some of the men elected "have a reason", others have not, but that matters little and the best man won as usual. Result—Christenson, first; Staatz, second; Galbraith, third; while Dugan and Meredith finished with the "also ran" group.

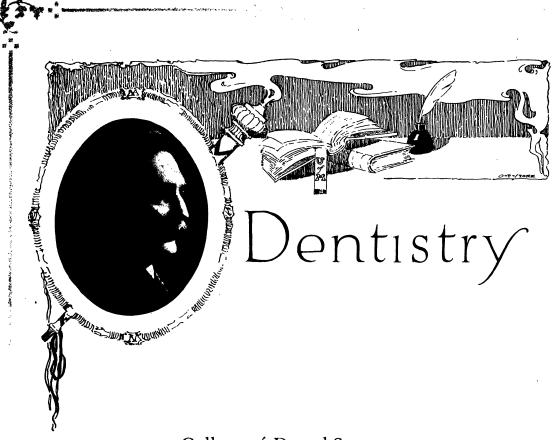

It seems to be the opinion of two of the members of the class "that if you are—then think you are", and that is the reason both Thomas and "Hank" Lichtig had an equal number of votes for "the sportiest guy" and "thinks he is"—"Tommy" being first in both with Lichtig a close second, but running a better race for "I think I am".

Many of the unattached whom no one dreamed would ever become a benedict had it wished upon them to be the first man married, while some one voted "accidents will happen". If votes count for anything at all and one is supposed to abide by public opinion Miller, Staatz and Funk will have heard, "Do you take this woman for your lawfully wedded wife?" long before they hear, "By the virtue of the power of the Board of Regents"—so if this be true then the question of who is the first girl to get married is settled at once.

College of Dental Surgery

NELVILLE SOULE HOFF, D.D.S., Dean

The first agitation for the creation of this department came in 1865, and in 1875 the Legislature appropriated $3000 per year, for a term of two years, with which to establish a school of dentistry at Ann Arbor, and in May of that year the Regents took steps to provide for the department. Two professorships were created and first filled by Jonathan Taft and J.A. Watling. The department had its early existence under the general supervision of the Medical Department. The course consisted of two years' work, the terms being only six months long, October to March, but in the fall of 1884 the terms were lengthened to nine months. In 1899 the course was finally made to consist of three years of nine months each. The degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery has always been given. The first accommodations were in the west ward of the old Homeopathic hospital building, then in the building now occupied by the Department of Civil Engineering, and in 1891, at the completion of the new University Hospital, the Dental Department moved to the old University Hospital building. At this time the Dental Society of the University of Michigan was organized, and assumed charge of the publishing of the Dental Journal, which ceased publication in 1900. The new Dental building was erected in 1908 and is one of the best equipped and most complete dental buildings in the world, especially in its Technical Laboratories and Operating Rooms. The Taft Library is located in the Dental building and contains almost every book on dentistry, and practically complete files of every Dental journal published. The Dental museum is also located in the building, and the odontological collection is especially strong-probably the largest and best of its kind to be found in any Dental college. It contains the collections of the late Professor Ford and Dr. William Mitchell of London, England. The museum has been named the Ford-Mitchell Museum. Beginning with the session of 1917-1918 the course of study will be extended to a four year course. An optional four year course will be offered beginning October, 1916.

The 1916 Dental Class History

FOREWORD

While the word history is used in two senses, meaning the record of events or the events themselves, and while all things in the universe are continually changing, thus making history, yet in its most commonly accepted meaning history deals with the more important events and their effects. Thus it is quite impossible for the author to make mention of those few gentlemen who have made a special request that their names appear on these pages.

In October, 1913, there gathered at the Dental building one hundred fourteen earnest pop-eyed freshmen. While they admired the haughty seniors whom they saw about the campus, yet were they filled with awe at their great learning, and many, gazing at these upper classmen, had serious misgivings when they thought of all the difficulties that must be overcome before they might attain that honorable and envied rank.

After receiving the customary admonitions from various members of the faculty, (said admonitions were considered as personal at that time, but since it has been learned that they are expounded to all freshmen classes) these freshmen proceeded to elect Mr. Peters to the presidency. The first year was spent to good advantage with the usual clouds that darken the sky at times for most first year men appearing on their horizon. But on close investigation they found that most of these clouds had a silver lining; and proper application to their work, on the part of those standing in the shadow, soon cleared them away.

In our Junior and Senior years our numbers for various reasons were somewhat reduced, but as a whole the class stood up well under the enforcement of the rules which the faculty carefully followed out. The second year, Mr. Moran, and the last year, Mr. Mead, were chosen to guide us thru the difficulties which confronted us; and these men, as well as Mr. Peters the first year, proved that the confidence of the class was not misplaced.

We have supplied our quota of men to the various musical organizations, including the Glee Club, the Mandolin Club, the U of M Band, etc.

In athletics, while we have not producted any of the GREAT men, yet we have among our numbers some of the near great, as evidenced by the fact that individuals are occasionally seen in our midst wearing a large "R" on their manly chests. But in class athletics we have made a very creditable showing, so that there are many who wear their numerals, thus proving that they prize honor among their own people more highly than supple fingers, even in this, their chosen profession.

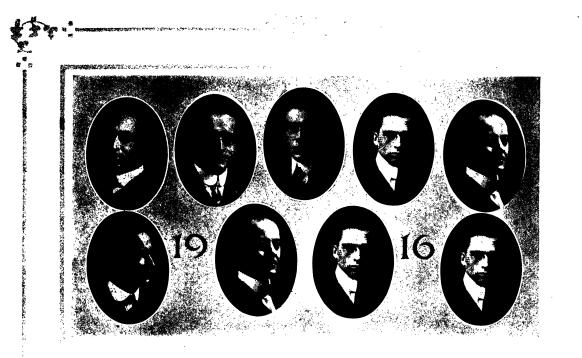

In a way the class as a whole has always been somewhat handicapped owing to the fact that the class role bears no names of any of the gentler sex. Some of the men, anticipating the lack of refining influence in the classroom brought wives with them; and others, after being in school for a greater or less period of time, came to realize acutely that to be deprived longer of their association might, and probably would, wreck their lives, and proceeded to take unto themselves helpmates. The balance of the class are resolutely endeavoring to complete their course alone but the interest of many seems to be somewhat divided.

During the summer intervening between the first and second years, El Said, a man who had come from Cairo, Egypt, to this dental School in order that he might fit himself to practice dentistry among his own people, fell ill and died. It was a privilege to know a man who maintained the greatest optimism altho continually confronted by a multitude of difficulties to which the rest of us were strangers, and the fact that he could not live to complete the task which he had journeyed so far to undertake and see the fulfillment of his ambitions, is lamented by all his associates.

The last year is now nearing a close and the majority of us are looking forward with pleasure to the latter part of June when we hope to have the privilege of following the band down the diagonal walk, around the campus, then to the Hill auditorium where we receive our diplomas which will allow us to undertake the task of demonstrating to various state examining boards that we are qualified to practice dental surgery in our chosen communities.

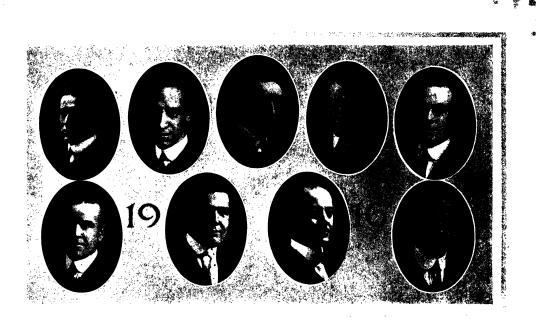

This pleasure is, however, tinctured with regret when we realize that we shall shortly be deprived of the counsel and assistance of the men who have labored so earnestly with us during the past three years. I refer to all the members of the faculty with whom we have been associated and whose influence and kindly interest will have such a distinct bearing on the remainder of our lives. But while most of us can enjoy the close association with these men no longer, yet by following their teachings in the main, and emulating their excellent examples we shall continue to benefit and likewise prove to them that their efforts to send out men who will do a real service for their fellowmen have not been in vain.

Personalities of the 1916 Dental Seniors

From force of habit, the faculty all agree that the 1916 Class is the best ever. In the numerous faculty meetings held at the close of the first semester, this did not seem to hold true.

History and Ethics rank head and shoulders above the rest as the most beneficial course, while Operative Principles was considered the biggest snap. In fact quite a few of the fellows were ashamed to take credit for the course. Orthodontia was by far the most enjoyable course. Dr. Watson's "abominable" and "heroic" phrases kept the fellows in good humor.

Jim de Liefde was chosen to be the most popular man with "Lep" Siev a close second.

Only having two girls in the class it was not very hard to decide the most popular one, Miss Miller winning by a large majority.

We have many handsome men but "Joe" Applegate's "rosy cheeks," ever present good natured smile, and the Hypertrophy on his upper lip, gave him first place. Harry Wood considered himself in the "handsome class"; at least, that is the impression made upon the class.

Alice Motley was considered the prettiest girl; possibly her ever willingness to bandage up and nurs all ailments of the class gave her the deciding vote.

The best student falls to the lot of "Hadley", his perfect recitations always inspiring us to do better in the future.

When it comes to the "All American Bluffer", "Doc" Woods fills the bill heroically. "Doc" Riekert his alternate.

"Jack" Campbell was unanimously chosen as the biggest grind.

"Dick" Meade proved himself to be the shrewdest politician by guiding us through the year with perfect harmony.

Our jolliest girl, "Hib" Hibler, has been somewhat downhearted lately; cheer up "Hib", it may not be all true.

Our class was mostly made up of fussers, but "Leinie" Leininger gets the belt.

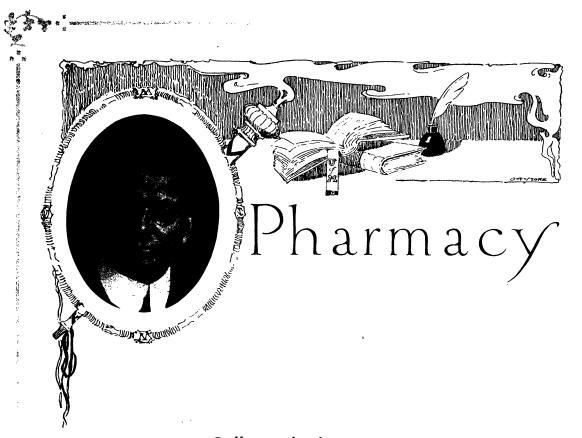

Grimes, our sportiest guy, was second to none on the campus, even if Lowther thought that he occupied that place.

"Kyp" Kyprionedes has been acting very strangely lately, pricing furniture, etc.; he seems to have lost all interest on clinic work. "Kyp" must be planning on entering the field of matrimony. Good luck, old boy!

College of Pharmacy

JULIUS OTTO SCHLOTTERBECK, Ph.C., Ph.D., Dean

The College of Pharmacy was organized in 1868 as part of the department of Literature, Science and the Arts. The first degree was conferred in 1869. In 1876-7 the college was reorganized as a separate department of the University. From the first the college combined laboratory methods of instruction with class work whenever practicable. In 1897 the Degree of B.S. in pharmacy was first conferred. The requirements for entrance and the number of hours required for graduation for the B.S. degree have always been the same as for other similar collegiate degrees given by this University. Beginning with the fall of 1913, the College of Pharmacy offered three degrees, requiring two years for the degree of Ph.G., three years for Ph.C., and four years for B.S. The entrance requirements for these degrees are graduation from an approved high school or its equivalent as found on examination by the university examining committee.

Since the completion of the new Chemistry and Pharmacy Building in 1910 the department has had the advantages of fine commodious quarters, with as complete working equipment as could be desired. There is an abundance of apparatus for regular work and class illustration, a fine prescription room with all modern equipment, also a splendid library, including recent publications and periodicals of chemistry and pharmacy.

History of 1916 Pharmacy Class

URING the last week of September 1912, the Pharmacy class of '16 arrived in the metropolis of Washtenaw County, hot in the pursuit of knowledge. After a hard fight they escaped with most of their baggage from a group of auto bandits employed by the Ann Arbor Taxicab Co., and turned their steps toward Houston Hall. Their ardor had cooled somewhat, when they arrived at the top of State Street Hill; however, remembering that beyond the Alps lay Italy, they strode onwards.

Out of the motley mass of pill rollers came Bill Seibert who ruled supreme during '12 and '13. Much credit is due Bill in changing the U. S. P. requirements so that several of our "Preps" were accepted. We had the splendid advice of Acting Dean Stevens, and Dr. Hubbard, who won fame by his signal defeat of A. E. Roedel in a controversy over the merits of Oscar Oldberg. About the middle of the month of November we were initiated into the mysteries of the Prescott Club, which investment was as profitable as the money put into the Y. M. C. A. was a very poor investment. Near the end of May a trip to Parke Davis and Co.'s plant in Detroit was enjoyed by the entire class.

Class activities started our sophomore year by the election of Dick Arner as class president. Dean Stevens and Dr. Hubbard were still with us. The Prescott Club made another feeble attempt for recognition and existed through the year. During this year the members of the class, according to the length of their pockets and the height of their ambitions split into the two, three, and four year classes. The class was entertained this year by Frederick Stearns and Co., of Detroit.

The fall of 1914 found Ed. Olson in charge of a very small but select crowd of pill and powder experts. In fact the class was so small that we had five officers and one private. Dr. Schlotterbeck returned after a two years' absence to resume the duties of Dean of the Dep't. He has piloted us through several of our courses, and though several of the passages were a little rough he has proven himself a very good captain, and has the respect of every Pharmic in the college. This year Dr. Hubbard left us to take charge of the Bureau of Organic Chemistry of the Dep't of Agriculture at Washington, D. C. A very feeble attempt was made to revive the Prescott Club but without much success. The class was well represented on Varsity Athletic teams.

With R. G. Brown at the helm we caught our wind for the last lap. We were joined by several men enrolled in the two and three year courses and together assumed the responsibilities of Seniors. Probably the most noteworthy event of this year was the revival of the Prescott Club, which at the present time is in operation with all its old time glory. In our four years of college life we have seen the College of Pharmacy double in numbers. The standard has been much improved and the requirements for admission raised. The College has been very prominent in athletics. For the last two years a Pharmacy student has been chosen Captain of the football team. We see many things in store for the College of Pharmacy and regret that the best four years of our life have so soon come to a close.

THE Homeopathic Medical School was established under act of the State Legislature as one of the departments of the University in 1875. It affords the unexcelled advantages of a university department. Residence in a community of students pursuing a great diversity of professional subjects is itself of much cultural value. It aims to give the student who is prepared to register in its classes a thorough training in medicine and surgery and bases its therapeutics upon the idea that the homeopathic principle is an adequate and successful guide in the selections of medicine. The school places emphasis upon the objective or clinical methods of instruction; such methods can be carried out only in a properly equipped hospital under entire control of a staff of competent teachers and demonstrators. The University Hospital (Homeopathic) is in the immediate vicinity of all university activities, being just across the street from the original campus, occupying a large space of ground so that its exposures to light and free atmosphere cannot be impeded. The hospital is conceded to be one of the finest structures of the University, is always the scene of practical work which is carried on primarily in the interest of instruction, and secondarily that those who are attracted to its service may receive the most careful and skillful attention. A feature of this department is a laboratory for pathogenetic experimental work. There are two nurses' homes in connection with the hospital training school, and some small shacks for the purpose of demonstrating the "open air" methods of treating tuberculosis. It also has a fully equipped clinical laboratory with a skillful director in charge. There is a separate building for the lying-in patients, also a building for the departmental offices.

History of the 1916 Homeops

HERE have been class histories, and there will be class histories; but the luckless historian who pens these lines seeks not to draw the eyes of the world from the struggle of the Triple Entente and the Teutonic hordes, for even a passing moment.

The class of 1916 lays no claims to hero medals or to unusual genius. We say unusual, or genius is simply doing a thing in a way out of the ordinary and we do recall numerous occasions, when we have done things as they have never been done before, and we pray never will be again. But the class have done things as they have never been done before, and we pray never will be again. But the class The class of 1916 lays no claims to hero medals or to unusual genius. We say unusual, for does claim to be the smallest graduating class on the campus and we are proud of it. "Little things make perfection, and perfection is no little thing," says Michael Angelo, hence we have the proper impetus that leads to success, for success after all is made up of the little things.

We entered the school in 1912, at the beginning of the increased requirements for entrance, which accounts much for our smallness. Forty percent of the class are men with Bachelor's degrees, while accounts much for our smallness. Forty percent of the class are men with Dachelot's degrees, while the remaining numbers have had at least two years of pre-medic work. Our history has not been unusual. We have enjoyed all the pleasures of our courses, and have also suffered all the agonies of a "poor medic." We have heard from one of our "learned" instructors, with a split-protein smile, that small doses stimulate, while large ones paralyze. That pleased us much; but, "oh cruel suspicion," he proceeded to make it more "particulate" and "specific" and said, "I mean mathematically small, not homeopathically." But to this day we have never been told the distinction. Yet we still glory in the power of the "little things," and in this the class stands as a unit; there are no "splits"

The fortunes of the class in the first year were guided by E. S. Thornton, then by P. E. Haynes and C. C. Thomas in the following years, in the order named. H. C. Allen has ably looked after our interests in the Student Council, and Miss Bessie N. New-comb has the honor of being the only woman enrolled in the department. The brightest spot in our otherwise uneventful career has been the "pater familia" spirit of our Dean and the faculty. The Dean says we haven't been as bright as he expected us to be and he never thought we were going to anyway. But he has ever been a father to us all, and many will be the times when twilight shadows lengthen across the lawn that our thoughts will revert to "Papy," and, yes, his inseparable friend, old "Peter."

We will also miss hearing members of the faculty say: "Sure as preachin'", "For all the world", "The indicated remedy is bound to work", "This isn't any text book, but this is my idea", "I per-formed that operation before I ever read of 'India' Smith's technic", and "I want my coffee with my meals not with my nig". meals, not with my pie"

There can be no sunrise without a sunset, and our medical sun is now far in the west, and is soon to pass beyond the horizon to rise on the morrow even brighter, we hope. And although the old scenes pass from view, our memories still remain, and ever will of the time when youth, and you and I were -MICHIGAN. E. S. T. in

Senior Homeopathic Statistics

Records show that in no department does the size of classes depreciate so rapidly as in the medical. If the toils of anatomy, histology and bacteriology do not send an embryo medic into a coma from which he never awakens, then it can be depended upon that pathology will administer the "knock-out blow." The instructor himself says that he can get the entire brain of a soph medic under one small cover glass, hence less than 60% of the entering freshmen class ever graduate.

In our freshman year, the class was composed of eight members. It now has eleven, an increase

In our first man being were study-ing. In our first two years we were told Homeopathy was "moonshine," "hot air," "pseudo-Christian Science," and numerous other terms less polite. But the last two years upon the other side, have been further enlightened by being informed it was a "grand truth," an "infallible law," a "true science," god-send," etc. a

Our chief regret has been that we could not fill more seats in the operative pit, and act as stimuli to the gentle zepher of our operators. But we thank heaven for Dr. Stouffer's class in "First Aid" which has always been welcome on Tuesdays and Fridays to take our place and sit in the draught.

Every member of the class has shown marked ability in some line.

Miss Newcomb has been the life of the class;

đ

ing water and the second s

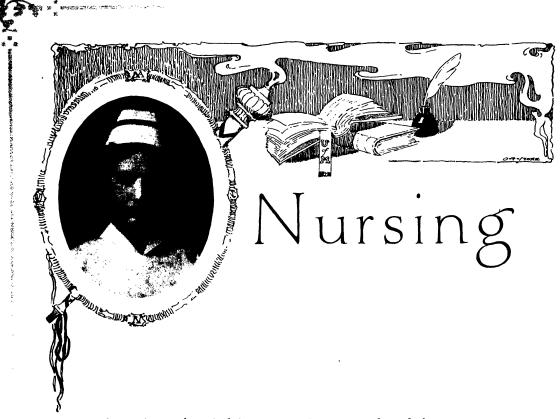

Haynes has taken more notes and attended more "movies" than all the class combined; Allen has specialized in Materia Medica and the honor system;

Thomas has been conspicuous by his absence from classes; Clark is known for his essay on "Pulsatilla"; while Thornton is the pathology shark without competition. "Mayo" Gates has had care of all major operation and seen that the hospital was run correctly. Silsby and Jordan have been successful in all lines, and their troubles have all been "small ones." Shaw is not in their class, but has hopes. "Hank" Clay rests upon his high school laurels, earned in early 90's.

We are all happy and glad that we have lived and thankful we have had the privilege of a university Ĕ. S. T. education at a school-like MICHIGAN.

University of Michigan Training School for Nurses

FANTINE PEMBERTON, R.N., Superintendent of Nurses

THE University of Michigan Training School for Nurses, which was established by the University in 1891, offers to young women desirous of becoming professional nurses a course of practical and theoretical instruction extending over a period of three years. To maintain a high standard it has been deemed advisable to receive into the School only those having a diploma from a four-year high school recognized by the University or an equivalent of such instruction which in all instances is determined by the Literary Department of the University.

By lectures and demonstrations the Hospital Staff and other members of the Medical Faculty assist Miss Pemberton, the Superintendent of the Training School, and her corps of eighteen graduate assistant nurses in the theoretical and practical training of the pupil nurses. The course of instruction has been arranged to meet the requirements of the Michigan State Board of Registration of Nurses and it is expected that each nurse upon graduation will take the examinations given by the Board and become a registered nurse.

The University Hospital offers unusual advantages for the education of nurses. Its size and scope make it unnecesssary for the student nurse to go elsewhere for any branch of hospital work, since, in addition to a varied experience in the medical, surgical, gynecological and obstetrical wards, she receives systematic instruction in the children's, eye, ear, nose and throat, contagious and psychopathic wards. Wide experience is received in the operating rooms connected with the various departments of the Hospital.

Class History

SEPTEMBER 1913 marked the entrance into the Training School of twenty-four young and inexperienced women. Passing unscathed through the first few horrible days of physical examination, of orientation, and of the humbling unwritten rule of seniority, we started our careers under the military discipline of our chosen calling. Having learned by the end of three months, amongst other things, that an appendectomy was not the only operation performed, and that a request for a "stick" in an egg-nog did not mean a drinking tube, we were elected to wear the crowning insignia of a nurse.

Our first year was uneventful. Class work, night duty, and our own ludicrous mistakes were the only variations from the routine of ward work. Eight were added to our class and several dropped out during this period.

In the course of a year we became intermediates and our kerchiefs established more confidence in us by the doctors than our experience warranted or our consciences justified, but we ably assumed our responsibilities which varied greatly. Simultaneously we acted head-nurse and proved the truth of the old adage that a good nurse never ceases being a probationer. Within a period of five minutes we made rounds with a chief and cleansed baby bottles in the kitchen.

Thus time passed and we have become seniors. Three strenuous years have sifted out those whose ideals were not concentrated upon the work and have left our original number. In knowledge of life we are years in advance of ourselves and we realize now how serious the responsibilities of our lives will be. "Suaviter in modo, et fortiter in re" is our motto and we have striven hard to attain these virtues attaching themselves to our profession. Although our course is limited to three years, we feel that we have been given a wonderfully broad education through our humanizing relations with people. Face to face with actual suffering, with sin, and with the pitiful stories we hear, instead of becoming hardened we have become more sympathetic, more tolerant of human frailities and more anxious to relieve any condition within our power.

We are proud to graduate from the University of Michigan Training School for Nurses and we gladly take this opportunity to express our appreciation to our Medical Director and Doctors, our Superintendent and her Staff, for the keen interest they have taken in us.

REVIEW

THE season of 1915 has been dubbed "the most disastrous of the Yost regime at Michigan." Bare figures would seem to bear out this statement of the critics. Of eight games on the schedule, four were victories, three were defeats and one was a tie game. The four victories were scored on the weak teams which came to Ann Arbor at the opening of the season for the customary practice tilts. The defeats were suffered at the hands of the "big" teams on the schedule, while the tie game, that with Pennsylvania, was a battle staged between two leviathans which had suffered uniform reverses throughout the fall. To the critic who wishes to see naught save misfortune in the record of the 1915 Varsity, the basis for pessimism is not hard to find.

But there were many bright spots in the season; many features which seemed to forecast great success in the future. The team which Yost sent into the games of 1915 was a green and inexperienced eleven. There were but few veterans, and these veterans were not of the class commonly called "stars." The glamour of the 1914 season cast its shadow over the playing season of 1915. There was no Harvard-Michigan game to serve as a goal toward which to strive. The schedule was an uneventful one, patterned along the customary lines of Michigan gridiron seasons. The year before had been filled with momentous events and the eyes of the collegiate world had been on Ann Arbor and her football team. None of that glamour was present in the fall of 1915. The season presented nothing save a hard, grinding series of games; games in which the Varsity was to be pitted against powerful elevens, and with nothing more formidable to present than an eleven far below the average of Michigan teams.

There were none of the stars of previous years around which Yost might build an eleven which would be powerful on attack or stubborn on defense. The All-American Maulbetsch of 1914 could not produce the yards he had added to the Michigan total the fall before, for the line in front of him was weak, and the star himself was not playing in his usual form. The line could not be built around a Raynsford or a Pontius or a Patterson. Yost faced a problem which was no less than discouraging, and there was not the material present to solve the difficulty.

The Varsity won its first four games, those with Lawrence College, Mount Union College, Marietta College and the Case School of Applied Science. In the first three instances the games were won by large scores, and although the Varsity did not show any startling play, these early battles did not give cause for gloom among the rooters. Then came the lowly Case eleven which, besides scoring on the Wolverines, held the big team to a scant two touchdowns.

One week later came the Michigan Aggies, and they administered a stinging defeat, a defeat which will always rankle in the hearts of the Michigan rooters who were a witness to it. The Aggies presented a powerful eleven, a team trained for this game and for this game alone. Experienced, determined, prepared to play the greatest game of their lives, these eleven athletes from East Lansing completely overwhelmed the Varsity and the 24 to 0 score was the result. Then Syracuse came to Ann Arbor and earned a 14 to 17 victory. The Orange eleven which defeated Michigan in 1915 was one of the most powerful teams which Syracuse had ever sent to Ann Arbor, and its success was well-deserved. Then came the defeat at the hands of Cornell, followed by the tie game at Philadelphia.

Through it all, the Michigan rooters displayed a fighting spirit and a loyalty to their eleven which more than compensated for the misfortunes which beset the gridiron athletes themselves. After the Aggies had gone back home wildly victorious, the rooters staged a wonderful mass-meeting, a tumultuous display of sincere loyalty and deep-rooted Michigan spirit which sent the players into the Syracuse game with a grim determination to prove worthy. It was not the fault of the team as individuals that the victory did not rest on the Maize and Blue. The same held true of the "come-back" spirit shown by the rooters after the Syracuse game, and of the "never-say-die" manner in which the thousands on thousands of Michigan rooters cheered their team to the echo in the heart-breaking Cornell battle.

While the 1915 football team may not go down in history, the 1915 rooters will linger long in the memory of Michigan men. The team did its best, but that is always expected. The rooters came up out of the lethargy of habitual success and proved themselves worthy of the victories which have been earned by Michigan Varsities in the past.

Michigan-Cornell Game

A LTHOUGH playing the best game of the season, Michigan's eleven was unable to stem the terrific onslaught of the champion Cornell eleven, and the Varsity went down to a 34 to 7 defeat in the closing game of the Ferry Field schedule of 1915. It was the largest score which had ever been totalled against a Yost eleven, although the margin of Cornell's victory was not as great as that of the 29 to 0 win by Pennsylvania in 1908.

In losing to Cornell, the Varsity was defeated by perhaps the most powerful team in the country, in the fall of 1915. The eleven from Ithaca was victorious over Harvard, which team was generally admitted to be among the very best of the season. Although Pittsburgh University might have been acclaimed nearly the equal of the Cornell eleven, the fact that no game was played between these two teams made a direct comparison impossible. The type of football shown by Cornell in its game on Ferry Field was by far the best of the season, and equal to any ever seen on the Michigan gridiron. The team was led by Captain Barrett, a player universally picked for All-American teams, and was composed of athletes of nearly the same calibre.

Michigan was playing her biggest game when Cornell came to Ferry Field. The team had suffered two stinging defeats, one at the hands of the Michigan Agricultural College eleven, and the other from Syracuse. But the players had caught the fighting spirit of the rooters, and "came back" for this important game with the Big Red team, as if no discouraging defeats had been administered to the inexperienced players. The game was the occasion of the annual "homecoming" of the alumni, the time when Ann Arbor is in gala dress and the annual football holiday is being celebrated. Nearly 23,000 people were packed into the mammoth stands of Ferry Field. For a few minutes at the opening of the second half this vast crowd was supremely, insanely, happy. For during that time Michigan scored her lone touchdown, and scored it by dint of a magnificent charge down from the center of the field. But during the rest of the game it was a somewhat chastened, although even loyal, crowd which wore the Michigan colors.

Michigan's defense was unable to stop the terrific attack of the Cornell backfield. Captain Barrett, Shiverick, Collins and Mueller found but little difficulty in making ground against the breaking Michigan line, which was stampeded by the aggressive Cornell forwards. Captain Barrett was the star of the game. He scored two of the five Cornell touchdowns, and added four points to his team's total by kicking that many goals following touchdown. He made repeated long runs, eluding the Michigan tacklers with an ease which seemed to indicate rather a lack of ability on the part of the Varsity players, than any unusual elusiveness by the star quarterback. The Cornell backfield quartette played as a compact, charging machine, and not as a set of individuals, with the result that it swept the futile Michigan defense before it. This backfield formed an interference for the man with the ball which could not be broken. The Michigan defenders, Watson and Benton on the one side, and Norton and Staatz on the other, were swamped or boxed or bowled over by these charging Cornellians, while the man with the ball slipped by to the Varsity secondary defense for a substantial gain.

Cornell presented nearly the same type of attack that was used with such deadly effect the year before. It was a grinding, smashing, overwhelming charge against which the individual grit and the desperation of the Varsity players was unavailing. It was irresistible, the terrific onslaught of that compact, united attack. And after the first two touchdowns had given Cornell a substantial lead, the success of a Big Red charge was largely a matter of psychology. The sight of that determined attack, as it formed for the charge, was sufficient to strike terror into the heart of even the most staunch Wolverine.

And yet, despite the power of Cornell and the seeming weakness of Michigan before her, there was a point in the great battle at which the pendulum might have swung the other way. Had Fate smiled upon the Varsity colors at that time, it might have been the Maize and Blue which waved in victory at the end, and not the flaunting red of Cornell. Such a Fate would have been a cruel one for the big easterners, for they were clearly the better eleven, but the "break of the game" has often given to the weaker team the glory of a final victory.

That climax, or turning point, came in the third quarter. To start this quarter, the opening of the second half, Michigan started a brilliant rally. Straight down the field to a touchdown, the Varsity carried the ball through a frenzied Cornell defense. And in a moment after the kick-off which followed, the Varsity again obtained possession of the ball. Every indication pointed to another march to a touchdown. The dogged determination with which Yost had inspired his men during the intermission seemed about to materialize into a rally which would rival that staged several years before against the very team now attempting it, the time that Pennsylvania came from behind and won in the last half of the game. But just as this march to a seeming second touchdown was starting, Maulbetsch fumbled, a Cornellian pounced on the oval, and the chance was gone. That play not only took the heart out of the Varsity, but it inspired in the Cornell eleven a fear that the unexpected might happen, and so they started out to make victory sure. This they accomplished with two more touchdowns.

That rally by the Yostmen in the opening minutes of the second half was the inspiring feature of the whole disastrous Michigan gridiron season. Niemann recovered a fumble on the Cornell 30-yard line to start the period, and there the Varsity attack started. Smith and Maulbetsch showed, for the first and only time in the game, a flash of the plunging strength they were capable of. The Varsity line charged before these backs and Cornell was pushed back. One of the famous Yost tricks, a "talking" play, took the ball from inside the

for the Harvard game, and which Quarterback Hughitt had called for on Soldiers' Field at a time when it was not needed. In the play used against Cornell, Roehm called his signals as usual, and then seemed to change his mind, shouting "Change Signals." At this the Cornell players eased up from their charging positions, and just at the moment when they were off-guard, the Wolverines charged, and Maulbetsch carried the ball through the disorganized Cornell line for nearly 10 yards. It was a play almost completely misunderstood from the stands, but to the stampeded Cornell eleven it spelt disaster.

Michigan's Varsity played a class of football far above the average of its work during the season, but even that was not equal to the tremendous strength of the Cornell eleven. Flashes of Yost strategy could be seen here and there, but even Yost strategy would not overcome the handicap of inexperience and so it was the Michigan Maize which met defeat.

Michigan-Pennsylvania Game

ICHIGAN and Pennsylvania fought to a scoreless tie on Franklin Field in Philadelphia, in the game which was the final appearance for the 1915 Varsity. In the face of a stubborn resistance by both teams, the attack of Quaker and Wolverine failed each time it was put to the final test under the enemy's goal posts. Pennsylvania failed more often in this regard than did Michigan, the Quakers losing a possible chance to score on three separate occasions, while the Michigan eleven had a real opportunity only once during the game. For this reason, if no other, the critics who saw the game, gave the honors to the easterners depite the brilliant rallies and the stubborn defensive play of the Wolverines.

The best chance offered to Michigan to score came in the second quarter. At this point the Wolverines rushed the ball to the Penn 16-yard line before they met any determined resistance. Here a fake kick for goal from placement was tried, with the result that the man who attempted to carry the ball was downed for a loss of ten hard-earned yards. The next play was an attempted forward pass, which sent the ball behind the goal lines, but instead of a Michigan man's being there to receive the oval for a winning touchdown, a Pennsylvanian received the ball, and a touchback was the best gained by the Wolverines.

Pennsylvania was little more successful in her attempts to score. The Quaker backs had little trouble in rushing the ball for long gains just so long as they were out in the center of the field, but the moment the play came close to the Michigan 10-yard line, the Wolverine defense invariably stiffened, and to go farther was an impossibility. On each of the three occasions when the Quakers reached this point on the field, they attempted a goal from the field. Twice Quarterback Bell tried to negotiate the points which would have meant victory for his team, and as many times he failed. On the third trial Left Tackle Mathews dropped back for the kick, but he too was unable to send the ball truly, and a Pennsylvania score was impossible. To take the oval over the last chalk line by rushing was a task which the Quakers early found to be futile. For no matter how easily the Michigan defense bent and yielded before attack while the play was out in the center of the field, this same defense became of the consistency of a stone wall when a victory for the enemy seemed to be a probability. Each time Captain Cochran rallied his defense for a last stand, and on every trial the Wolverines proved equal to the emergency.

The battle which was staged on Franklin Field was a clash of two elevens which had bowed before the superiority of their enemies during practically the whole season, preceding their meeting. Pennsylvania had been beaten by Dartmouth, Lafayette, Pittsburgh and others, and was still later defeated by Cornell, while Michigan had already met reversal at the hands of M. A. C., Syracuse and Cornell. The supporters of both elevens were confident that this battle, staged between two such traditionary rivals, would find their particular team of sufficient power to wring a much-desired victory. But each was doomed for disappointment. Their favorites were strong enough to stave off defeat, but each lacked the necessary "punch" which was an essential to victory.

Line-plunging was the feature of the game, and for this reason the battle resembled greatly the games of five years ago, when a smashing attack was emphasized more than the present open style of gaining. In this particular, Pennsylvania exceeded Michigan in actual number of yards gained, but her plungers were not more effective considering the fact that the ball was more often in the possession of the easteners than in the hands of Michigan. Maulbetsch found it more than difficult to gain ground, but Smith was a consistent plunger until he was forced to retire because of injuries. The Quakers seemed to have been especially coached to stop Maulbetsch, and the smashing back was unable to get away for consistent gains. The Quakers had evidently been carefully trained in the best way to make Maulbetsch ineffective, and they surprised the Michigan rooters by their success in this particular. Smith, on the other hand, was able to reel off long gains, and was also a power on defense. Pennsylvania's line plungers, Derr and Williams, tore great holes in the Michigan line, and were the most successful gainers on the field of play. They were largely instrumental in placing the Quakers within striking distance of the Michigan goal on the three occasions when Pennsylvania seemed about to score. The punting of Bell was much better than that of the Michigan kicker, Dunne. The Wolverine punter was performing this duty for the first time in a Varsity game, and for this reason his inability to get his kicks away for any distance and with any direction was excusable.

Michigan was further handicapped by a veritable avalanche of penalties which the officials inflicted. Off-side penalties were in the majority, and more than once a Pennsylvania attack was materially aided by the addition of a few yards of Varsity territory.

Captain Cochran, Staatz, Roehm and Cat-lett played their last game for Yost and Michigan on this day. Catlett and Roehm distinguished themselves especially, while the Michigan captain was in the thick of the fight on each one of those three terrible defenses down near the goal posts. Rehor, a substitute all during the season, became a regular in this game, and was a demon on both offense and defense. Weske, the rawest recruit on the Wolverine squad, stayed in his position at right tackle throughout the game, acquitting himself to the satisfaction of the critical Yost.

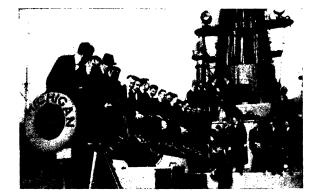

It was not the glorious finish to a disastrous season, which the rooters had hoped for. But it was a finish which showed the Wolverine Varsity display-which the officials inflicted. Off-side penalties were in t and more than Pennsylvania

1915 Varsity Baseball Season

Won 16, lost 7, tied 3.

W ITH this record, the Michigan Varsity nine of 1915 went into history on June 23rd, following the last of the Commencement Week series with the Pennsylvania University team. Michigan won both those games, displaying the best brand of baseball playing of the season, a brand that had not been especially evident during a season which had not been the success anticipated.

Michigan's team of 1915 set up a record which has not been surpassed by many baseball nines. In the terms of "big league" ratings, its percentage would be .696, or high enough to win the average league race. But the team which represented the Varsity in 1915 was generally regarded as the most powerful aggregation ever produced at Michigan, and a much cleaner record of games won and lost had been looked for.

The team won its southern trip series, taking every game save one. It broke even on the eastern trip, winning two and losing two. But it failed to win all save one of the really important series of the season's schedules. Michigan Agricultural College won the majority of the series between the two state rivals; Cornell won the odd game, while an even break ruled with Syracuse. Pennsylvania, alone, of the big teams opposing Michigan, fell a victim to the Varsity nine. Notre Dame also was conquered in the series, but it has been so long since the Catholic Varsity won a series with Michigan that it is no longer accounted one of the "big" teams. The ignominy of a series lost to the lowly Kalamazoo Normal nine was also a part of the record of the 1915 nine.

But even this record cannot detract from the glory of a team which, when it once hit its real stride, showed a better brand of baseball than has ever been exhibited by a Michigan team. In the game with the Alumni and with Pennsylvania, the Wolverine Varsity was unbeatable. It was machinelike in its defense and unstoppable on offense. The result was three clean-cut victories over teams which were both strong and well-balanced.

A batting slump which could not be shaken off, was the cause of whatever misfortune was the lot of the 1915 Varsity. This slump struck the team just at the opening of the series with Syracuse, the first of the big Eastern nines to come to Ferry Field, and it stayed with the team until after the Notre Dame series. While in its grasp, the strong and aggressive Varsity nine was seemingly powerless. Ball players are naturally superstitious, says tradition, and the Michigan University brand of the genus was evidently no exception, for the players seemed unable to shake off the hoodoo.

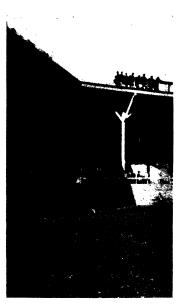

There were two other elements which had much to do with the poor work of the players during the middle of the season. A reform campaign, carried on by several students on the campus, was aimed at questioning the amateur standing of three of the leading players. Anxiety concerning the result of these charges interfered materially with the playing of these men, and had much to do with the morale of the whole nine. Conversation among the players, on the bench and in the club-house, had more to do with the activities of the reformers, than with the playing. The result was not a concerted and effective play. Also, an early-season ruling of the officials took Coach Carl Lundgren off the bench during the game, and the players were without his guidance and generalship. The result was a lack of harmony, bickering among the players and often fatal mistakes on the diamond and in the batting box.

Despite these handicaps the 1915 nine played through a hard schedule with its percentage of .696, and with batting and fielding marks far above the average.

The 1915 nine sent to the Major Leagues perhaps the greatest player ever produced by a Michigan baseball team, in the person of George Sisler, captain in 1914 and both a pitcher and fielder of wonderful

"Whitey" Otis still lingers in the hearts of "homecoming" alumni as the best cheer-leader ever ability. He was the brightest star of the 1915 team, winning the majority of his games as pitcher and proving a tower of strength in the field and at bat. In the final three games of the schedule, Sisler hit safely nine consecutive times, just missing finishing the season, and his college career, with a straight list of safe hits, when a Pennsylvania outfielder, playing far back of his regular post in center field, raced back under a terrific fly from Sisler's bat, and robbed the Michigan star of a safe hit.

The 1915 Michigan pitching staff was composed chiefly of veterans. Sisler, Ferguson, Davidson, Soddy and Mc-Namara were all seasoned players, the latter alone serving his first year on the Varsity. The infield was made up nearly entirely of two-year men, while the outfield also had its quota of veterans. It was a team which, at the opening of the season, seemed destined to make a brilliant record.

For the first time, and perhaps for the last, in Michigan baseball history, the spring training trip of the team was made along the southern Atlantic seaboard. New teams, such as Marshall College, Washington and Lee University, the University of Virginia and Staunton Military Academy, were on the schedule. While a distinct success in the matter of games won, as a training trip the tour was not satisfactory, and in 1916 the Varsity has again returned to its old haunts along the lower Mississippi River Valley for the seasoning process.

Rainy weather spoiled the close of the annual eastern trip and the games with Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania were of necessity cancelled.

The feature of the season, from the standpoint of the Michigan student watching his team from the Ferry Field grandstand, was the series with the nine from Kalamazoo Normal. Two games were played between these two teams, in one of which Sisler and Koob, both now stars of the St. Louis American League team, opposed each other, and in the other of which Ferguson and Koob were the opposing moundsmen. Sisler was able to hold the Normal nine to a tie, but Ferguson was the victim of a 4-2 defeat.

One unfortunate incident marked the 1915 baseball season. It has been before alluded to, and concerns the activities of the reformers who sought to attack the amateur standing of several of the Varsity players. As a result of the charges brought by these investigators, unsavory publicity was given to Michigan athletics in the press throughout the country, two of the Varsity players were dismissed from the team and a third deprived of his athletic insignia, won in 1915, and declared ineligible for further competition during that year.

Michigan's team in 1915 met some of the strongest teams in the college world. They were teams which could have rendered a good account of themselves in any kind of competition. They possessed strong pitchers and a well-coached defense. Against these nines the Varsity was pitted at a time when it was not at its best. The result was a record which was not as glorious as that of the collegiate championship nine of the year before, but was nevertheless as good as that of many Wolverine baseball teams.

"Cy" Ferguson could make the ball fairly sing when he threw his famous "straight over"

The 1915 Track Season

A<sup>T</sup> the opening of the 1915 track season, Coach Stephen J. Farrell of the Michigan Varsity, faced the problem of developing a strong squad with only a very small nucleus of veterans. That the season was a success was due primarily to the fact that the sophomore class presented several athletes who proved themselves to be real stars, and capable of going directly into collegiate competition and producing results.

The schedule was a heavy one, starting off with two match relay races, one with Pennsylvania and one with Princeton. Although the Varsity lost both of these races, the margin of the victor's win in each instance was a small one, and the showing of the Michigan team was such as to promise much for the future. In each case the Varsity team was composed largely of youngsters, and the fact that they were given their collegiate baptism in the grilling competition of a match relay race was the cause of their defeat.

As a season of dual meets, the record of 1915 was a complete success, for the Varsity won all four of the contests. Two victories were earned over Syracuse and the same number against the Notre Dame team. The margin of the victory in the indoor encounter with Syracuse in the latter's gymnasium was particularly close, the meet not being decided until the relay race had finished. When the Michigan team started this relay, they were behind the Orange Varsity in total number of points scored. They won the race and took the meet by a margin of three points. To accomplish this result the Michigan racers were forced to beat the very men who had defeated them in the match races of the relay part of the event program.

. For the first time in history, Michigan entered the Drake Relay Games at Des Moines. Stephen J. Farrell, the Varsity coach, acted as Referee for the meet, and the welcome accorded the Wolverines was a most agreeable one in that so many of the supposed Western Conference enemies of Michigan were entered. While the single Varsity team entered, the four-mile relay squad, did not win its event, it forced the Wisconsin team to clip 32 seconds off the former Drake Games record for the event in order to win. The showing made by the Varsity team was more than satisfactory, and the gritty races run by each one of the four men won the favorable comment of the Western Conference coaches and athletes.

Michigan avenged this defeat by Wisconsin at the Drake Relay Games by thoroughly trouncing the Badger Varsity one week later at the Pennsylvania Relay Games. At this eastern meet the Varsity team was unable to win the victory, as the wonderful Cornell four could not be bested. Michigan took second place, however, with Wisconsin in third position.

Three of the Varsity's individual entries in the Relay Games won places. Smith, the Michigan captain, ran in second place to Howard Drew in the 100-yard dash. The colored whirlwind from the Pacific coast was by far the best sprinter at the meet, but the Michigan man forced him to his greatest speed to win. Wilson of the Varsity tied with thirteen others for third place in the pole vault. Two athletes were tied for first place, so that a second place was not awarded. Cross of the Michigan team, finished fourth in the discus throw.

The most satisfactory feature of the whole of the 1915 season was the record made by Captain Harold L. Smith at the annual Eastern Intercollegiate meet at Franklin Field in Philadelphia. Pitted against the best college sprinters in the country, he took first place in both the dashes, winning easily in the 100-yard dash and in the 220-yard dash. By accomplishing this feat, he tied with Meredith, the sensational Pennsylvania star, for the individual honors of the meet, for Meredith won both the quarter and the half mile races.

The Michigan Varsity at the Eastern Intercollegiate was composed of twelve men, but only three of them worked their way into the scoring columns. Smith made 10 points in the sprints, Carroll earned three points in the mile run by taking third place, and Wilson gathered in one point in the pole vault when he was awarded fifth place. The pole vault was somewhat of a disappointment, as Wilson failed, on the second day, to make as good a record as he had on the day of the preliminary trials.

The remainder of the Varsity men were mostly sophomores, taken to Philadelphia for the purpose of seasoning. O'Brien made a good showing in the 100-yard dash, finishing sixth, but the others failed to qualify.

Underclass Contests of 1915

SPRING

THE freshman class of 1918 had been held scoreless in the fall contests of 1914. This was not an encouraging record with which to enter into the games that followed in the spring, but the event proved a good test for their "come-back" power.

The big games were scheduled to come off on May 22nd and 23rd. Both classes had previously held large mass meetings at which the traditional spirit of antagonism between these underclasses was stirred to overflowing. On these occasions Egmont Hildner was chosen as captain in the push ball contest for the sophomores, and Archie Walls for the freshmen.

The tugs of war were staged as usual on Friday afternoon; but their location on the Huron was changed from above the Michigan Central Depot, as formerly, to the banks between the island and the new bridge of the River Road. This change was made in an effort to secure more even conditions for both sides in the pulling. The lightweight teams burrowed into their positions first, and, on the shooting of the gun to start, there commenced one of the fiercest tugs of war in the history of the University. It holds the record for time, they remaining in a deadlock for 1 hour and 18 minutes, and then it was discovered that the sophomores had three men on their side above the lawful number, so the decision was given to the freshmen as a forfeit. The two following tugs were made much shorter by a ruling that all had to stand up from the beginning. In the middleweight pull the freshmen dragged the sophomores into the chilly Huron within 9 minutes; and then the second year men came back in the heavyweight and doused the freshmen in 4 minutes.

The contests were continued on Ferry Field Saturday morning, and first on the program were the obstacle relay races. There were three of these and the sophomore teams won the first two by a large margin, but the freshmen were victors in the third. This made the score a tie, and the big push ball contest had to decide the result. It was hotly fought by both sides, and despite the superior numbers of the freshmen they were held thruout from making a goal. However, they were allowed the winning point at the end for having the ball over the sophomore line; and thus carried off the spring contests by a score of 4 to 3.

FALL

The freshmen class that had been squelched in the fall a year ago returned this time and administered the same punishment to the aspiring freshmen of 1919. In the mass meetings that preceded, rush captains were chosen, Archie Walls again being selected by the sophomores and Ward Peterson by the freshmen.

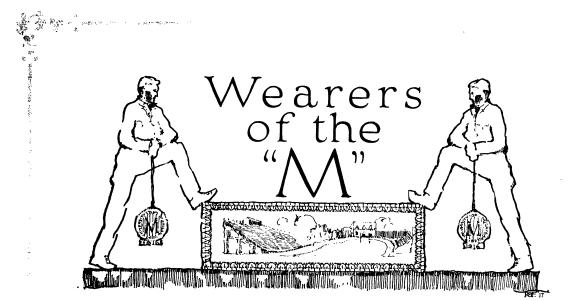

October 16th was the day set aside for the memorial struggle, and early in the morning the opposing ranks began to assemble on the campus. The green paint found its way in liberal touches to the immature brows of the yearlings, and they followed the sophomores in a riotous march to Ferry Field. But their spirit was soon to be humbled. They encircled the three poles which it was their duty to defend and awaited the onslaughts of the sophomores. Those about the center pole were not kept long in waiting, for it was here that the sophomores concentrated their first attack. They came from opposite directions, and after a fierce contest which raged for 8 minutes a sophomore rose out of the struggling mass and scaled the pole for the flag. This won, the sophomores turned on the west pole and by rapid charges crawled over the green topped domes of the helpless freshmen and the flag was lowered within the small space of 3 minutes. All efforts of both sides then became centered on the east pole, but here again the jubilant second year men were successful within 4 minutes.

This left the freshmen windless and at the empty end of a 4 to 0 score, but the Cane Spree was yet to take place. This developed into a close and hard fight, but the sophomores could not be defeated. Draws were called in the case of six canes, but out of the remaining twenty-four the sophomores wrestled away thirteen. This added one more point to the sophomores' total, and the freshmen had little to smile over when they exposed their tattered shirts to the photographer before Hill Auditorium.

The Persephone Fete

The myth of Persephone was presented in classical dancing on the evening of May 26th, 1915, at Observatory Hollow. The leading characters were:

	Genevieve O'Leary Helen Champion	Hermes . Aidoneus		. Mina Winslow Katherine MacBride

senting "Winter", "Summer", "Famine", and "Spring Pantomime". The success of the dancing was due to the careful training of Miss Alice Evans, Physical Director of Women, and Miss Marion Wood, assistant. The music for the "Famine Dance" and the introduction to the "Greek Maiden Dance" were original compositions of Ellen Sargent. The presenting of the idea of the myth was greatly aided by the artistic costuming under the direction of Helen Dow. The orchestrations were done by Mr. William Mills. The orchestra was composed of University students under the direction of Mr. Lee Parker and Mr. Frank Rummell. The committees in charge were as follows:

Women's Athletic Department

Until the year 1915-16, women's athletics at Michigan were controlled by the Physical Director and an Athletic Chairman appointed by the President of the Women's League.

In October, 1915, the Chairman, Madge Mead, proposed to the University women the organiza-tion of a Women's Athletic Department which would arouse more interest and cooperation in women's sports. The suggestion was carried out, and a constitution drawn up by the Athletic Committee was ratified by the Board of Directors of the League.

A "tag day" announced the birth of the organization, membership pledges were signed by hundreds of women, and a Wienie Roast was celebrated at Palmer Field. During the last two weeks of the out-door season a wienie sale was conducted at Palmer Field, and on November 12th the Department gave a Topsy Turvy Dance which was well attended and financially successful.

At Dean Jordan's suggestion the Department has pledged itself to raise funds for a new club house at Palmer Field. This is expected to cost about $5000 and will be planned on a rustic type. The de-partment hopes to raise money for this fund by various events such as the skating carnival of January 18th, and by a pledge campaign.

General University ORGANIZATIONS

Members of the Union Gathered to Show the Need of a New Building

The Michigan Union

The national campaign among Michigan alumni for funds with which to build a new clubhouse served to make the Michigan Union known even to the prospective freshmen about to enter the University last fall. For that reason, the present small quarters were somewhat overcrowded during the opening days of school. The free employment bureau and rooming list committee were able to render assistance to a greater number of students than ever before. The climax came on the Friday evening of the first week of college, when the freshmen, after attending the mass meeting at Hill Auditorium, adjourned to the open house given primarily for them, and packed the assembly room to overflowing.

The annual Football Smoker was attended by the full quota allowed, in spite of the disastrous football season. The Band, and Glee and Mandolin Clubs provided the music for the occasion and "Lyndy" with some new slides caused several laughs during the evening. Michigan's "Thanksgiving" was well told by Werner Schroeder, and Michigan traditions were clearly described by Professor Hildner of the German Department. "Tom" May of the Detroit Free Press was the only out of town speaker but the quality of his speech made up for the lack of numbers. At the close of the Program Professor Gram of the Board of Control of Athletics presented the "M" certificates to the deserving candidates. It is hardly necessary to state that the tobacco supply smoked as well as ever and the doughnuts and cider filled the rest of the bill along that line.

The first membership dinner held in December was attended by about one hundred fifty Union members. The second dinner was attended by about the same number. Short snappy programs characterized both. It is hoped that the last dinner of the year, to be given as an inauguration banquet for the officers newly elected for the coming year, will be even better in every way than the ones already spoken of.

"Tres Rouge," the 1916 Opera, had a very successful week before Ann Arbor audiences and was received well by the alumni at Chicago, Detroit and Toledo. In spite of the fact that delay seemed to be the principal feature of the work in getting the book and music completed, Mr. Morgan was able to stage a musical comedy, free from specialties and still teeming with situations that made each audience laugh. This year's production has certainly done its share in maintaining the standard set by the best of previous offerings of the Mimes.

The "Campus" life-membership campaign held just before spring vacation, showed that the great mass of students have considerable interest in the largest organization at the University. A committee of men, one hundred fifty strong, raised forty thousand dollars in three nights, making the total amount subscribed on the campus approximately one hundred thousand dollars. In short, there are at present, two thousand students who have expressed a desire to become life members.

As a "hanging out" place, the Union has been very popular this year. The Forums and Faculty nights have attracted their share of attention and the Sunday afternoons have been attended by an appreciable number. The Bridge Tournament, while not having so many participants as those had in the past, was none the less successful than those of previous years. The distinctly new features of the Saturday night dances were the long lines which formed about four o'clock each Thursday afternoon, and the waiting list for those who were not in time to secure a ticket. Special dances were held on various occasions and the attendance at those hardly ever fell below the limit of one hundred couples.

"All That Glitters"

Present plans call for beginning work on the new building at a date not far distant. It is to be hoped that interest in all various activities will not lessen because the realization of a great dream is near at hand, and we all hope that next year at this time we can see a new structure standing where the present one is now located. ## The Student Council

THE Presidents of the Student Council for the past year have been T. Soddy, and H. C. Rummel, two leaders who have done a great deal to carry out and expand the work of the body. The Council has tried to crystallize student sentiment and feeling into definite action and has endeavored to determine student sentiment. It has also tried to act definitely and rapidly upon a policy of merit which has been advanced, and to govern its action by a standard of the greatest ultimate good to the student body.

Several things of a tangible type have been carried out in the past year. The Council brought the city, the Eastern Michigan Edison Company, the University authorities and the student body together on the "Safer Huron" campaign, and then turned the work over to the Michigan Boat Club, though still working with the latter organization. It has worked with the Health Service to put rope fire-escapes in every fraternity and sorority house. It has taken up Packard Academy for student dancing, the proceeds of which go to charity. In that line, it has provided for big campus dances every Saturday night next year to be held in Barbour Gymnasium. It has also provided for co-operation between the men and women by establishing a joint committee of three Student Council members and two of the Women's Judiciary Council, which meets to decide policies of special interest to both. The value of each is apparent.

The Council is now attempting to establish a closer relation between the faculty and students in two ways. It is attempting to have three student members on the Board in Control of Student Affairs. It is also working toward compulsory Freshmen assemblies in the literary college.

In general it may be said that it is trying to make the Council the officially recognized student organization for carrying on the work that is strictly concerned with student affairs. It is attempting to do this by establishing closer co-operation between campus societies and itself, by appointing society members as the official Student Council committee, etc., and by asking them to send representatives to discuss campus problems, so that a thoroughly representative campus opinion may be obtained. All in all, the year has been a good one, and the outlook is very promising. J. A. H.

The Judiciary Council of the Women's League has completed its third year, and is now an established factor of the University life.

The Judiciary Council stands in the same relation to the girls as the Student Council does in respect to the men. It enforces the laws which are made by the Regents, and also oversees the general work of discipline among the girls. Then too, individual cases of conduct are brought up before this body and are acted upon privately. The Council acts upon many cases, and passes laws which cannot of course be made public.

In short, the Judiciary Council has interested itself in all vital points of Campus life, greatly aided in its work by Professor Lloyd and Mrs. Jordan.

The undergraduate section is a self-perpetuating body, elections being held at the end of the second semester of the Junior Year at which time one-half of the members are elected, the remainder being elected during the first semester of the Senior Year. Elections are made from lists approved by the Faculty Section. Scholarship is held to be the most important qualification, although individuality, originality, and moral character are also considered.

The Michigan Daily

THE changing of campus conditions has brought about a change in the demand for the construction of the campus publications, and acting upon this, The Michigan Daily has resolved itself into something more than a mere chronicle of University events.

The main addition, which has so changed the paper's form and appearance is the telegraph news, teceived by special service from The New York Sun. This has necessitated the adding of two pages to the old four-page publication, and has brought about a subsequent change in make-up and in the manner of handling university news.

In addition to the technical appearance of The Daily which this has caused, there is a broadening of the paper's field until it now includes the news of the world, the city and the campus. It presents brief and yet complete reports of the larger events of the day and adds them to the bulletin of the students' affairs. In this way it not only provides informative reading for the campus, but it likewise incorporates more of real newspaper principles.

Though there are doubtless many ways in which The Daily may be improved upon, this latest addition has brought it to the front rank of college publications. The university in successfully taking this forward step, has won a great victory. It marks an epoch in the history of Michigan affairs, and means a broadening of campus outlook.

The life of The Michigan Daily has been marked with just such progressive steps. It was first printed in 1890 in an office above a fruit store. In 1895 it reached a low financial ebb, and in 1901 another paper, The U. of M. News, sprang up in opposition. But in 1903, The Daily took over the News and from that time on has been going forward. The present place of publication and system of its management mark the highest point in the history of The Michigan Daily.—J. S., Jr.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

RECOVERY OF THE PURCHASE PRICE BEFORE TITLE HAS PASSED .- In an action recently instituted by The General Electric Co. to recover on a contract to manufacture certain machinery for the defendant, which machinery the defendant had refused to accept, the trial court adopted the contract price as the measure of damages. The upper court approved this measure of damages, rejecting the argument that the measure should have been the difference between the market value and the contract price, and dismissed, as no longer appropriate to modern conditions, the decisions in Bement v. Smith, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 493, and Shawhan v. Van Nest. 25 Oh. St. 490. The court recognized, however, that these decisions had been sound when rendered. As they have frequently been referred to as anomalous rulings, it may be interesting to consider the effect upon them of this recent decision. Manhattan City, etc., Ry. Co. v. General Electric Co., 226 Fed. 173.

The rule is established, as a general proposition, that a vendor can not bring an action upon a contract of sale in indebitatus assumpsit for the purchase price until the title has passed. "The principle, concisely stated, is this-that a count for goods bargained and sold can only be maintained where the property in the goods has passed from the plaintiff to the defendant." Elliott v. Pybus, 10 Bing. 510. If the goods are not in existence at

Michigan's Year in Oratory

HE record of the University in Oratory and debate for the year 1915-1916 has been highly creditable, in that a large majority of the contests were won by her representatives.

The quarter-centennial of the Northern Oratorical League was celebrated at Iowa City, May 7, 1915. The contest was one of the strongest in the quality of the speeches and in the character of their presentation that the League has ever had. For the first time in the history of oratory and debate at Michigan the University was represented by a woman. Having won the home contest and the Chicago Alumni Medal Miss Frances Louise Hickok became Michigan's representative in the League contest, at Iowa City. Her subject was "The Mission of New Womanhood." No orator who ever spoke for Michigan showed finer feeling or had better attention than did Miss Hickok. The race was close between the representatives of Michigan and Minnesota, only one point separating them. The judges awarded Miss Hickok second honor, and Mr. Carl M. Painter, of Minnesota, first.

The seventh annual contest of the Michigan Peace Oratorical Association took place at the University of Michigan, Friday, March 19, 1915. Six other of the State Colleges were represented. Nathan Earl Pinney spoke for the University and was awarded first honor, the State Normal representative receiving second. In the Central Group of States, in which the best college orators of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan were pitted against one another Mr. Pinney again won first honor which carried with it the right to represent the Central Group in the National Contest, at Lake Mohonk, New York. Here Mr. Pinney met the winning orators of the other five groups, as follows: The North Atlantic Group, The South Atlantic Group, The Southwestern Group, The Western Group and the Pacific Group. Mr. Pinney was awarded third honor, being beaten by the representative of Boston College who won first honor, and the representative of the University of West Virginia who won second honor.

The question for the Central League debate for 1916 was as follows: Resolved, that Congress should adopt a literacy test for all European immigration.

Michigan's affirmative team met the Northwestern University team at Ann Arbor, January 21, 1915. The Varsity team was composed of Wilber M. Brucker, '16 L, Joseph R. Cotton, '16, and Alexander J. Stoddard, '17 L. Dean Cooley of the Engineering College presided. The two thousand people present showed deep interest throughout the debate. There was a divided vote of the judges, the decision going to Michigan by a 2 to 1 vote.

On the same evening at the University of Chicago Michigan's negative met the University of Chicago team. The Michigan men were as follows: William J. Goodwin, '16 L, Nathan E. Pinney, '16, and Paul V. Ramsdell, '16. Professor Andrew C. McLaughlan, of the University of Chicago, formerly of the University of Michigan, presided. There was a large audience and much enthusiasm. As at Ann Arbor the decision was divided, Chicago winning by a 2 to 1 vote.

The second annual contest of the Mid-West Debating League was held March 31, 1916. The question chosen for debate was as follows: "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate all public service telegraph and telephone systems in the United States, constitutionality waived."

Michigan's affirmative team met Wisconsin's negative team in Hill Auditorium before a representative and enthusiastic Ann Arbor audience, Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois presiding. The Michigan team was composed of William T. Adams, '17, Irving S. Toplon, '17, and R. S. Munter, '16 L.

The debate was full of fine spirit on both sides. The decision was unanimous in favor of the University of Michigan.

Michigan's negative met the Illinois team at Urbana, Ill., in the University Auditorium, March 31, 1916. Michigan's team was composed of George C. Claassen, '17 L, William E. Olds, '16 and Kenneth M. Stevens, '16 L. The debate was characterized by great earnestness, keen thrusts and much humor and repartee. The decision of the judges was 2 to 1 in favor of the University of Michigan. Michigan has won all of her debates in the new Mid-West League losing only two out of twelve judges.

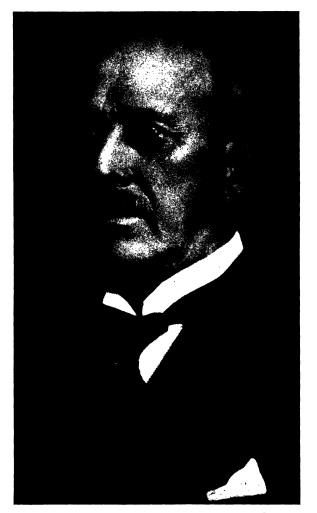

The appropriation of the Regents, whereby all students are given yearly admission tickets to all debating and oratorical contests, took effect this year. It has not only brought out more contestants than usual but has awakened wider general interest in the public questions discussed.

Michigan's Record in Oratory to Date

N the twenty-five contests of the Northern Oratorical League, Michigan has won nine first honors, three seconds and six thirds, against six other western universities, as many first honors as any two of her competitors. Six first honors were won in succession.

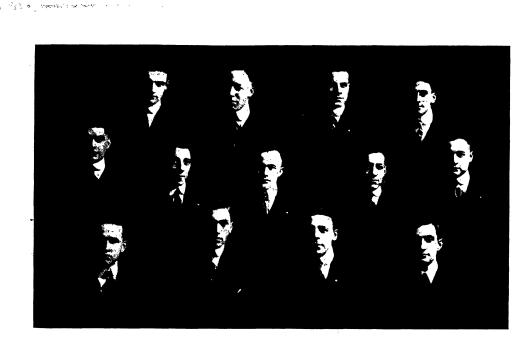

In the Peace Contest the University has represented the State of Michigan in six Interstate or Group contests, winning three of them, and has also appeared in three National Peace contests, winning two of them in succession at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., the one by Percival Blanshard, in 1912, the other by his twin brother, Paul Blanshard, in 1913.

Michigan has taken part in fifty-two intercollegiate debates, winning thirty-five of them. Her record is as follows: Six of the seven with Wisconsin, nine of the sixteen with Northwestern, three of the four with Minnesota, three of the four with Pennsylvania, twelve of the nineteen with Chicago, and both of the debates with Illinois. Only three of these debates have been lost by unanimous decision, while twenty-one have been won by unanimous decision. At one time eleven debates were won in succession, four in succession by unanimous decision, records not equalled by any of the large universities.

THOMAS CLARKSON TRUEBLOOD, A.M., Professor of Oratory The large number of successful debates to Michigan's credit can be traced to the inspiration with which he has imbued our representatives.

"The Automobile Society"

NE day last December a group of engineering students got together and formed an organization which they called the "Automobile Society." The society has for its object the promotion of automobile engineering among students and its formation is but a natural sequence to the growth of the Automobile Department at Michigan.

Although the society was organized under the temporary title of "Automobile Society" it is expected that before this book appears the society will have taken over the title of "University of Michigan branch of the Society of Automobile Engineers." The S. A. E. is a national organization and it is thru its interest and the interest of the local society that the branch will be formed.

The Junior Girls' Play

THE Annual Junior Girls' Play owes its existence to Mrs. Jordan, who suggested that the juniors write and produce a play in honor of the graduating class. The senior girls had been in the habit of selecting a play from the dramatic literature of various countries and producing it during Commencement week open to the general public. In contrast to this, the Junior Play is original and gives a chance for fun-making often at the expense of people and institutions on the campus. In 1904 an entertainment dealing with Buster Brown at Michigan was given, and from this the Junior Play developed.

On the evening of Swing-Out in 1905 the first Junior Play was given. It was called "Everysenior", obviously a travesty on the old morality play and opened with the following prologue, "This is a treatyse how Everysenior is sumoned to render accounte of her ille deedes and well-knowne disgraceful actions. Her kind friend, Everyjunior, perceiveth her portending destruction and hereby warneth her." The Voice of God, or Dean Hudson, was taken by Mabel Tuomey. The rest of the characters were Dethe, or Pluck and Con; Felowship or Society; Kyndred, or Parents; Goodes, or Bank Account; Knowledge, or Domesticity; Dyscresion, or Pa Finney; Confession, or Dean Jordan; The Grave or Graduation; Strength, or Athletics; Five Wits, Bluff, Bolt, Brass, Jolly, and Excuse; and Everyman or Everysenior.

The authors were Eugenia Bray, Ann Mulheron, Elizabeth Prall, Juliet Stockbridge and Effie Armstrong.

The next year "Alice in Seniorland" was given, its authors being Ruth Rizer, Louise Wicks, Margaret Dresser and Hortense Flexner. Alice, a freshman, was guided through Seniorland by the Caterpillar, a sophomore, who introduced her to the Cheshire Cat representing Coach Yost, and the Right and Left Bowers representing Professors Whitney and Markley. The Mock Turtle, Dodo and Griffin were other members of the faculty, while President Angell was the King of Hearts. A group of seniors came in admitting that they had become engaged during their college course, were ordered off to cooking school by the Duchess, otherwise Mrs. Jordan.

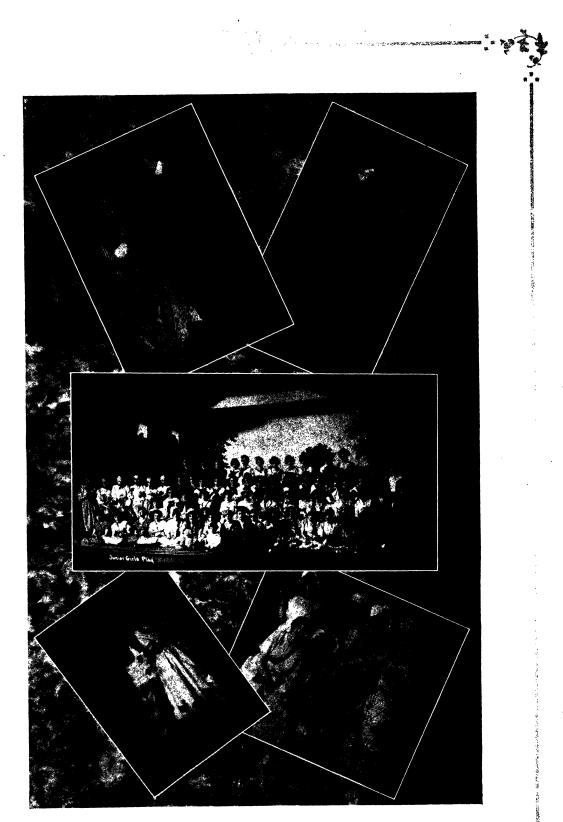

The offering of 1907 was "Don Quixote, the Co-ed Knight", "Adapted from the Spanish," by Eleanor Demmon, Barbara McAlvay, Marjorie Fenton, and Isabella Watt. Don Quixote, the Spanish cavalier, came with his squire Sancho Panza to save the seniors from being overworked by their professors. The Knight clad in armor of boiler and kettle tops was a gallant figure and much admired by the girls. Curiosity had been aroused by this play as an editorial in the Daily shows:—"Now in view of the present anxiety to maintain a democratic spirit in contemporary affairs, why all this exclusiveness at the North West Corner of the Campus? The men are aggrieved at being barred from the gay little functions held under Mrs. Jordan's eye. It is too bad to be shunted so into the cold, cold world. Some day we shall have a club house of our own and then they can't 'play in our yard.' Meanwhile we hope the Junior Play will be mirth provoking enough to keep them oblivious enough to the envy of those outside."

A distinct advance was made, when "Michiguse," by Margaret McLauchlan was given in 1908. The idea was very clever, the scene taking place on the airship "Michiguse" where Professor Stargazer's class in skyology is looking on the campus. On spring evenings various "group phenomena" could be seen strolling about and one girl thought she observed a snap course in the Engineering College but was mistaken. Both "Michiguse" and the second part, "Coedenda" contained takeoffs on the Union Opera "Michigenda," the hit of the evening being the "Rah!Rah!College Girl", played by Miss McLauchlan, who sang of her various admirers.

"Martiagan," by Jane Harris and Sarah Sunderland, was performed in 1909. While some of the girls are at a spread with certain members of the faculty the alarm comes that a company of Martians had landed on the Campus and is marching quickly to the banquet. The rest of the play relates the invasion and final conquest of the Martians who come to take the senior girls to Mars and found there a University of Martigan. "I Kind O Like Ann Arbor" and "The Billiken" were greatly appreciated.

"Eds and Co-eds", by Fannie Biggs, Marian Ludington, Nellie Canright, Ruth Anderson and Josephine Rankin was played in 1910. This play abounded in local quips and allusions; Professor Thomas was seeking rhetorical errors in the book of the Recording Angel, and Professor Wenley was puzzling his classes by discussing the "is" and the "isnotness" of the "isnot".

In 1911 Mary Woodhill recalled to us our nursery days in a farce bearing no name, presenting many familiar figures from Mother Goose:—Humpty Dumpty, Bo-Peep, Peter Piper, Miss Moffat and a host of others. This piece was somewhat spectacular and the chorus work was good, the Dutch and Blackbird Choruses being especially well liked.

法遗嘱的时候

There were many quaint and humorous scenes "In Old Bagdad," the libretto by Louise Conklin and the music by Eva Hanks. Mary Palmer was excellent as Reginald Worthingham of Oxford, travelling in the Orient; Marguerite Stanley made a fine caliph and Elaine Shields was amusing as Shampoo. A fairy tale, "In the Realm of Dreams" by Marjorie Nicholson, was enacted in 1913. We witnessed the adventures of a princess disguised as a peasant girl who was finally found by the prince, rep-resented by Isobel Rizer. Irene Bigalke was very funny as the duenna of the princess, continually re-

After this play a farce "Daily Life", by Emily Gilfillan, gave to outsiders a glimpse of the Daily Office and how that publication "might" be managed. The editor was bothered by a bevy of girls who came to chat with him when he was trying to get the paper ready for press. Gwendolyn Brown, a very popular girl, played by Phyllis Dunne, was in love with the editor and continually calling him up during his business hours. He tried to escape these damsels but could not, so a less attractive editor was in-stalled. Louise Robson was screamingly funny as Bob the reporter and Julia Anderson as the lover of one of the suffragettes caused that chorus to be encored again and again. "The Treasure of Toule", by Louise Markley, was given by the Juniors of 1914. "Castles, Fairy Castles,", the music by Helen Malcomson and words by Vera Burridge, was very successfully sung by Alice Lloyd and Romaine Bramwell. It was probably the best song which had been written by any of the junior girls during the history of the plays. The eleventh play, "The Come Back", by Eleanor Stalker, appeared in 1915. The scene was laid in Ann Arbor in 2002, the men having left college many years before to go to the war in Europe. Act I takes place in the Dean's office where we discover her in an angry mood. Some girls have rushed the Majestic the night before and she resolves that they shall be "summarily dealt with". Gerald, a daring youth enters and tries to persuade the Dean to let the men return to Michigan, but she refuses. Gerald, however, is backed in this request by the girls, several of whom have fallen in love with him. Act II is on the Campus where the horrified Professor Jones discovers Gerald chatting with the girls. She is so shocked that after reproving them for such conduct she tells Gerald to leave at once.

The Dean has not always been the stern woman she now is. She loved once, but her lover left her, embittering her towards man; for this reason, she refuses to reinstate Gerald and his friends. But for-tunately her old sweetheart returns and explains his defection in so touching a manner that she relents towards men in general and him in particular. The play ends with the promise that Gerald and his friends may return to Michigan. Between the acts burnt cork specialties were given by Julia Barksdale, Beatrice Hannan and Nina McIntyre.

Much of the success of the play was due to the Committee, of which Martha Gray was Chairman, Helen Humphreys, Assistant Chairman, with Adele Westbrook, Mildred Bacher, Bertha Pulford as Property, Publicity and Business Managers, respectively. The orchestra consisting of Ellen Sargeant, Piano; Marie Paulus, 1st violin; and Amy Nelson, 2nd violin, was the first to be composed of University girls. The cast follows:-

Horatio Blanker, the Dean's old lover . . . . ELIZABETH MCRAE The most popular songs were, "I Know a Secret" (which was afterwards published) words and music being by Martha Gray and Ellen Sargeant; "Those Peaceful Days," lyric by Eleanor Stalker, music by Ellen Sargeant, sung by Emma Knoepp and a chorus of professors in academic costume; and "You Need A Man," by Martha Gray and Ellen Sargeant, sung by Gerald, telling the girls of the good old days, when men were at Michigan and pointing out to them the many advantages man's presence would bring.

Would bring. The more humorous songs were, "The Poor Typewriter," by Jemima Wenley and Ellen Sargeant; "The Joyful Spring," by Katherine MacBride and Ellen Sargeant, sung by Katherine and Jemima Wenley, and Sunbonnet Chorus; "The Downtrodden Man," by Jemima Wenley and Ellen Sargeant, depicting the woes endured by men through Suffragettes. The society dancing of Helen Ely and Ethelyn Bolen and the aesthetic dancing of Helen Ely and Genevieve O'Leary were the big hits of the program. This Junior Play was the first to make an out-of-town trip, going on May 15th, 1915, to Toledo, at the invitation of the Association of Collegiate Alumni, where it scored a decided success. This made a milestone in the history of the Junior Girls' Play; and so well were the girls received that the 1916 Junior Play has been invited to Detroit.

Taking the play from the beginning we can trace its development from the first farce, "Buster Brown," it gradually becoming more compact and unified, though always retaining the local hits on the seniors. The first few plays were written by several girls but later one girl has written the play, with the music and lyrics written in competition. Many of the former plays employed men to write their music, as well as furnish it. Each year it has become more of a Junior function, going outside of the class only for part of the orchestra and the director, Professor Brumm. Too much praise cannot be given him for the able manner in which he trained the cast of the 1915 play. K. M.

General Fraternity Rushing Rules

Adopted by the Inter-Fraternity Council

ARTICLE ONE

SECTION I. No prospective matriculate or freshman shall be pledged to any fraternity prior to the tenth day preceding the opening day of the college year in which he matriculates.

SECTION II. All pledging must be done in Ann Arbor.

SECTION III. Any pledgeman who has failed to become a student in the University within thirty days after the first opening day of college following his pledge shall forfeit his pledge.

ARTICLE TWO

SECTION I. No freshman shall room in a fraternity house.

ARTICLE THREE

SECTION I. No student shall be initiated into a fraternity unless such student has received, either:

(A). Eleven (11) hours credit earned in one semester in this University with a grade of at least "C" in each course constituting the said eleven (11) hours credit.

(B). Or has received an average grade of "C" in all his courses taken during one semester in this University, provided the courses taken amount to thirteen (13) hours of work.

ARTICLE FOUR

SECTION I. The failure of any pledgeman to fulfill the above requirements for initiation, as stated in Article III, for two semesters after his entrance in this University shall render his pledge void and render him ineligible for membership in any fraternity in this Conference.

SECTION II. Article III of above rules shall not apply to students holding degrees from any accredited University or College.

Calendar

- Oct. 5—University opens and the new assembly of "Frosh" and others ease out to their first eight o'clock. University enrollment increases 500 over last year.
- Oct. 6—Varsity opens football season with a 39-0 score over Lawrence. The announcement of President Wilson's engagement turns many Democrats into Socialists.
- Oct. 8—The Daily announces that it will keep the campus posted on the greatest conflict the world has ever known.
- Oct. 9—Our team played Mt. Union. We nosed out a 36-0 victory. Maulie and Pat Smith aren't bad at all. A great number of Fresh caps are seen at the Majestic. Call for Dean Effinger.
- Oct. 12-Doc. Warthin gives his usual line to the Freshmen. Professor Talamon decorated for bravery in the French army.
- Oct. 13—Marietta springs a big surprise by scoring on the Varsity. Score 28-6. "Oh I just knew Michigan would win," gleefully announced one of the fair co-eds as she tripped out of Ferry Field.
- Oct. 14—Doc May finds the usual number of flat-footed "first year men."

date office furniture. The atmosphere of any well-appointed office is conducive to substantial fees, supplements your request for fees that correspond to your services and makes an increase in rates seem thoroughly justified.

Nearly Everyone is Willing to Pay for What They Get

Patients feel that they are getting more—when they are attended in a modern, carefully-appointed office. Such service, rendered under ideal conditions, is apt to command better fees—to put you on a higher plane, or permit you to retain in the eyes of your customers a reputation for being progressive —and thus keep earning capacity to the maximum.

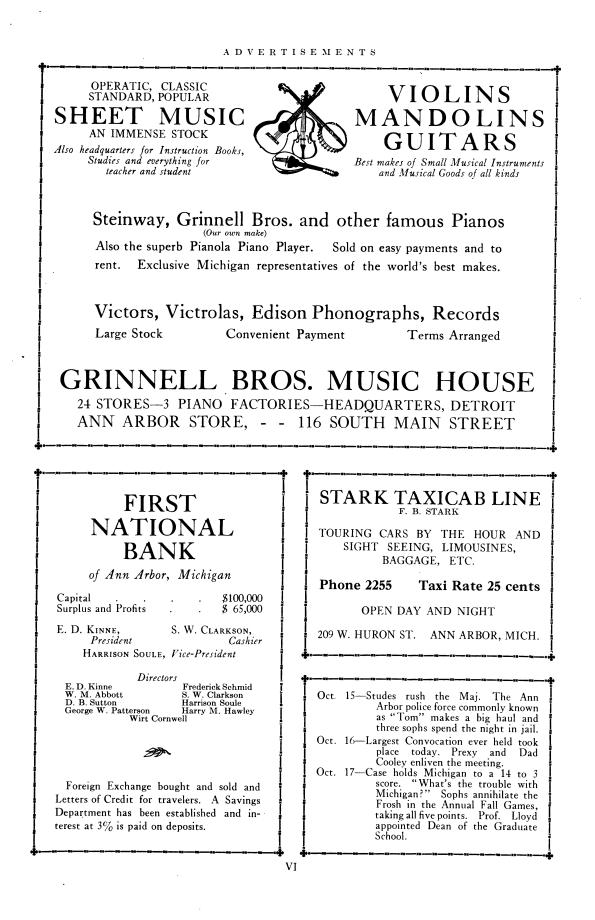

Our No. 97 Cabinet is a masterpiece of beauty and efficiency. It is built for men and women of discrimination and taste. It is exceedingly convenient durable, impressive and the price is along lines that will please you.

Send for our complete catalog. You will find No. 97 illustrated in natural colors, and described on pages 36 and 37. Write this request for catalog now to

(Series No. 437)

The maid paused irresolutely and then went on. Soon she was lost in the nodding confusion of the ferns and wild hyacinth bushes. It was evident that she was looking for someone, half anxious to see him and yet not a little tremulous at the anticipation of meeting. It was a June for love with the air heavy with the sultry fragrance of the late May flowers.

But let us proceed with the little maid. We are sure that she will pardon our eavesdropping for after all has been said love is not wholly modest and Dan Cupid is not averse to publicity. One can hear the noisy murmur of the busy brook as it glides over smooth, moss-covered stones. Yes, that is she leaning in pale and anxious presumption over the little pool made by the winding stream. But we must not draw too close for there comes the tread of another foot which we believe must be that of her lover's.

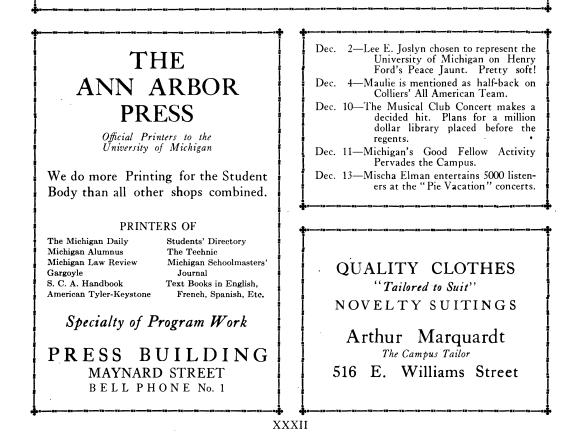

Now we are sure of it. Already there are fond embraces going on between the pair which in all good respect for the affectionate ones have caused us to turn our heads. The youth is drawing something bright and gleaming out of his pocket and is showing it to the young lady. It is a beautiful sister pin of the man's fraternity, set with a splendid diamond in the center and is his gift to his betrothed. In it are expressed the fraternal feelings of the man coupled with his love for her who is to be his wife.

"B. P." jewelry has often aided true lovers by the side of little brooks in becoming the seal of gentle and true affection.

The sequel to this stirring romance may be found in the publication on The Book for Modern Greeks, a copy of which will be mailed free upon mention of this article. Address the fraternity jewelers, Burr, Patterson & Company, Detroit, Michigan. The book contains many suggestions useful to

Yours truly,

DAN CUPID.

THE LUXURY OF A LAKE TRIP

Where will you spend your summer vacation? Why not enjoy the charms of our Inland Seas? Rest after work is necessary to human endurance and holidays are a wise economy. The only enjoyable and economical outing is on the Great Lakes. All important ports are reached regularly by the steamers of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company. These boats are unrivaled in point of elegance, comfort, and quality of service, the perfect freedom afforded by the salon and promenade decks, the commodious staterooms, luxurious furnishings and excellence of cuisine makes life aboard these floating palaces a solace to the weary mind and body.

WHERE YOU CAN GO

Daily service between Detroit and Buffalo, May 1st to November 1st. From June 10th to September 10th, Steamer City of Detroit III, 500 feet long, and Steamer City of Cleveland II, 444 feet long, two of the largest and finest sidewheel steamers in the world, operate between above points. Daily service between Detroit and Cleveland, April 15th to December 1st. During July and August daylight trips will be made Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday out of Detroit, and Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday out of Cleveland. Two boats out of Detroit and Cleveland every Saturday and Sunday night during July and August. Four trips weekly between Toledo, Detroit, Mackinac Island and way ports. From June 10th to September 10th daily service from Toledo to Put-In-Bay. From June 25th to September 10th, special steamer from Cleveland to Mackinac Island, the Historic Summer Resort of the North Country, making two trips weekly, stopping only at Detroit every trip
